BIG DECREASE IN PUMP PRICES SHOWN BY BIDS

New Bids Opened by Board and Committee Yesterday Afternoon.

COST OF VERTICAL PUMP DROPS DOWN $24,000

Nine Bids Are Submitted for Vertical and Centrifugal Pumps—Bids Referred to Subcommittee, Which Meets This Morning at 10 O'Clock.

The board of water commissioners and the special council committee appointed to help the board select a new pump for Hemphill Station, met yesterday afternoon to open the bids that had been received.

After the bids, nine in number, had been opened and read it was decided to refer them to a subcommittee, which will meet this morning at 10 o'clock in the mayor's office.

There were present at the meeting yesterday afternoon:

Chairman Rice, Councilman Hancock, Commissioners Dorsey, Duncan, Pace and McCullough of the water board, and Alderman Key, Alderman Curtis, and Councilman Taylor, of the special committee.

The subcommittee appointed to make a report on the bids is as follows:

Chairman Rice, City Engineer Clayton, General Manager Woodward, Alderman Peters and Councilmen Taylor and Hancock.

The Bids Submitted.

The bids submitted were as follows:

By the Wisconsin Engine Company, of Corliss, Wis.: One 20-million gallons vertical, triple expansion pump, $139,500.

By the Bethelem Steel Company, of South Bethelem, Pa.: Vertical triple 20-million expansion pump, $132,000; centrifugal 20-million, $68,000, and one 25-million centrifugal, $74,000.

By the Holly Manufacturing Company, of Lockport, N. Y.: Vertical triple expansion pump, $156,000.

By the William Todd Company, of Youngstown, Ohio: Vertical triple expansion pump for either, $157,400 or $165,000.

By the General Electric Company, of Atlanta: One centrifugal pump, 20-million gallons, $56,000; one 25-million centrifugal, $61,930.

By the Camden Iron Works, of Philadelphia: One vertical triple expansion pump, $147,000.

By the Dolin Engineering Company, of Philadelphia: One centrifugal pump, 20-million gallons, $39,900; one 25-million gallons centrifugal, $42,500.

By the Allis-Chalmers Company, of Milwaukee: One 20-miillion centrifugal pump, $43,700; one 25-million centrifugal, $48,200.

By the Allis-Chalmers Company: Vertical triple expansion pump for either $134,700 or $149,300.

About the Former Bids.

The Holly company's bid of $156,000 for a vertical pump was the same as made before when that company made the lowest bid for that kind of pump. The lowest bid now made for a vertical pump comes from the Bethelem Steel Company, and is for $32,000, which is $24,000 lower than the Holly company's bid.

The only bid made for a centrifugal pump before was for $125,000, with all the necessary attachments and houses. The lowest bid for that kind of pump now is $39,000, but this is just for the pump itself. It is considered, however, a great deal cheaper than the bid formerly made on a centrifugal pump.

There are some twelve or fifteen pump agents in the city, who will wish to be heard before the subcommittee this morning.

It is believed that a vertical pump will be selected, and if the pump offered by the Bethlehem Steel Company is satisfactory that company's bid of $132,000 will probably be accepted.

A new pump for Hemphill Station, after many months of weary waiting and wrangling, now seems to be in sight.

HOW TRUST FIXES PRICE

Methods of the Tobacco Combine in Dealing With Growers.

New York, November 25.—During the government's investigation of the American Tobacco Company before United States Commissioner Shields today Thomas B. Yuille, head of the leaf buying deparament of the corporation, told how the company fixed the price paid growers in order to regulate the supply. A committee of four directors, he said, determines the company's purchasing policy. The buying is started at an average price, which is raised if the leaf is coming in too slowly and lowered if the supply is too great.

According to his testimony, the American Tobacco Company has buyers in every market in the United States, but does not attempt to control its competitors buying in any of them. The chief competitors, he said, were the Imperial Tobacco Company, of Great Britain, and the R. J. Reynolds Company.

JEALOUS WIFE KILLS RIVAL

In Presence of Husband Mrs. Maith Shoots Mrs. Brown.

Baltimore, Md., November 25.—Maddened by the belief that her husband's affections had been stolen from her by Mrs. Sallie Brown, Mrs. Annie E. Maith today shot and instantly killed Mrs. Brown. Two bullets from a 32-caliber revolver entered the victim's forehead. The shooting occurred in Mrs. Brown's home, and was done in the presence of the husband of Mrs. Maith. Immediatlely after the shooting Mrs. Maith went to the nearest police station and gave herself up.

WATSON FOR GREENBACKS; HE ALSO ATTACKS BRYAN

Georgian Declares That Civil War Money Acts Are Still Good Law.

INVITED BY ROOSEVELT TO VISIT WHITE HOUSE

Watson Finds Fault With Bryan's Attitude on National Banks—Says if Bryan Is Correctly Quoted He Has No Right to Be Leader.

By JOHN CORRIGAN, JR.

Thomson, Ga., November 25.—(Special Staff Correspondence.)—Hon. Thomas E. Watson has some pronounced views on the present financial situation, which he will communicate to President Roosevelt at a white house luncheon on Monday, December 9.

The announcement that Mr. Watson had been invited to Washington, and would be the guest of the president at luncheon, led The Constitution representative to seek from the "Laird of Mountain Top" the whys and the wherefores of the visit.

Just a few days ago Mr. Bryan called on the president and outlined a plan for government guarantee of deposits in national banks. Now, Mr. Watson, one time a candidate for president, has been requested by the president to come to Washington, and has accepted the invitation.

When he was found in his work den on the second floor of his handsome home on the outskirts of Thomson, Mr. Watson was asked if his contemplated visit had anything to do with the president's investigation into financial ..... measures.

"President Roosevelt and I have had some correspondence on the financial situation," he replied, "and I have been asked to come to Washington for a personal interview, and shall accept."

In discussing various phases of the financial situation and recent suggestions of amendments to our financial laws, Mr. Watson was asked what he thought of Mr. Bryan's proposal. He said:

"The idea that the government shall become guarantor for bank deposits is a monstrous proposition so long as the national banking system exists.

Approves Postal Savings Bank.

"The only way in which the government should guarantee deposits is by establishing postal savings banks. When the government has the handling of the deposits, the government can well afford to guarantee them, but when such ravenous treasury looters as Harriman, Ryan, Belmont, Heinze, Morse and company are in control of the big national banks, how can any man who claims to be a Jeffersonian democrat advocate a government guarantee of deposit?

Bryan Called an "Opportunist."

"This recent Bryan interview sent out from Washington clearly shows him to be an opportunist. He is catching at every plausible proposition that bobs up. If he were more of a serious student and not quite so much of a whirlwind talker, he would avoid some startling errors.

"This last proposition commits him to the national banking system and to a closer alliance between the Wall street money power and the government. On this he will meet the rsolute antagonism of every voter who believes in the creed of Andrew Jackson, Thomas H. Benton, George Mason and Thomas Jefferson.

"If Bryan was correctly quoted, he has shown that he has no right to lead a party of Jeffersonian democrats. He not only seems to have no idea of antagonizing the national banking system, but his proposition if adopted would mean a union of the government and the Wall street money power in a way that would enchain the masses hopelessly forever.

"If Bryan really wants to be a leader of thought at this time, he would do well to make a careful study of the farewell address of a certain democrat named Andrew Jackson. Between Bryan's position and that of Jackson the difference is fundamental."

Urges Issue of Greenbacks.

On being asked what he would say to the president in regard to changes in the financial laws, Mr. Watson declared he would give some idea of what a "genuine Jeffersonian democrat" thinks of the situation which he characterized as calamitous. He believes this can best be done in a face-to-face, man-to-man talk. He declared there was no political significance whatever in the visit, and said:

"I will earnestly press upon the president the danger of an asset currency to be issued by the national banks, and will urge him to recommend to congress an act amendatory to the act of 1862-3 authorizing the issuance of at least one billion dollars of greenbacks."

Mr. Watson believes these civil war acts are still good law and would meet the present crisis more in the spirit of Lincoln, Jackson, Madison and Jefferson.

"The total amount of these treasury notes authorized by act of congress (1862-63) was $450,000,000," said Mr. Watson, who continued:

"The act of April 12, 1866, provided that these notes might be retired to a certain extent, each month, but this process of destroying the greenbacks was stopped by act of February 4, 1868. The

1,200 ARABS SHOT TO DEATH BY FRENCHMEN

Ten Thousand Fierce Tribesmen Swoop Down on Camp of the French.

PITILESS FIRE POURED ON CHARGING TRIBESMEN

Arabs Attacked With Utter Disregard of Their Lives—Only Eight of the French Soldiers Killed During the Battle.

Maghnia, Algeria, November 25.—Ten thousand of the fiercest Benisnassen tribesmen swooped down on the French camp yesterday and were beaten off with a lose of 1,200 killed. The fighting continued for a long time, and was conducted on the part of the tribesmen apparently with total disregard for their lives.

At one time the French infantry were in danger of being surrounded, but they finally disengaged themselves from their perilous position by a most brilliant charge of the Spahis. The rout of the Arabs was completed by vigorous shelling by the artillery. The French loss was eight killed.

BANKERS PUT IN THE VAULT BY ROBBERS

Daring Raid Is Made on an Illinois Bank and $2,200 Is Secured.

PISTOLS USED TO FORCE BANKERS INTO VAULT

When the Three Men Were Released They Were Almost Suffocated. Robbers Made Their Escape With Bag of Booty.

Bloomington, Ill., November 25.—The State bank, at Clinton, was held-up and robbed of $2,200 in coin shortly before 5 o'clock this afternoon by two men, who made their escape. With drawn revolvers the robbers forced Cashier George Argo, Assistant Cashier Murphy and Bookkeeper John Young to enter the big vault, which they locked. The bulk of money had already been placed in the currency safe in the vault and the time lock set, but $2,200 in gold and silver remained on the counter. This the robbers shoveled into a bag, and took with them to the Hotel Henion, where they had previously engaged a room. They were just about to leave the hotel when officers learned of their presence and attempted to break in the door.

Before they succeeded, however, the robbers jumped from a window on to an adjoining roof, taking only the $700 in gold, and leaving $1,500 in silver in the room. A posse was organized, and the country is being scoured for the men tonight.

Before the highwaymen left the bank building they called up the telephone operator and requested her to send some one to the bank and release the three bank officials imprisoned in the vault.

When Charles Parker, collector for the bank, opened the door the men were almost suffocated.

BANKING BILL PASSED.

Louisiana Legislature Adopts Measures Regarding Deposits of Funds.

Baton Rouge, La., November 25.—The house tonight passed a state banking reforf bill, which was one of the objects in calling the present extra session of the legislature. The bill provides that state funds be deposited in banks paying the highest rate of interest. At present such funds are deposited according to the orders of a standing commission.

Governor Blanchard tonight signed the tax collecting reform laws, which vastly reduce fees of state tax collectors. Thorough action of the senate the commission which will investigate New Orleans port conditions was completed. It has five members.

THE ANNUAL TRAGEDY!

7 PERSONS ARE WOUNDED IN STRIKE RIOT

Street Car Trouble at Louisville Again Marked by Fierce Outbreak.

THREE OF THE INJURED PASSENGERS ON CAR

And One of Them Was a Woman—The Riot Occurred in the Fashionable Residence Section of Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., November 25.—The most serious riot thus far of the street car strike occurred tonight, and as a result two men are known to be shot, two policemen are injured by stones and clubs, and two more men and a woman are reported to have been shot. A number of heads were cracked by the police. The condition of the last named three cannot be ascertained, as the street car on which they were traveling was hurried to the car barns, and the identity of the alleged victims kept secret by the company officials, who refused to give any information whatever.

Unknown Persons Badly Hurt.

That the unknown persons were either shot or badly injured by stones is positively asserted by reputable persons who were passengers on the car and escaped injury.

The trouble occurred on the Fourth avenue line, near Kentucky street, a fashionable residence neighborhood, shortly before 7 o'clock this evening. A south-bound car, loaded full, was suddenly attacked by six or seven hundred strike sympathizers. A hail of stones, pistol shots and clubs was poured into the car, the conductor and a policeman aboard returning the fire, with what effect is not known. The motorman hurried the car out of range, although himself and a man and woman passenger are declared to have been struck by bullets.

Mob Surrounded.

Twenty police arrived on the scene a few minutes later in automobiles, and surrounded about a hundred of the mob in an alley nearby. The mob broke through the cordon, fighting fiercely, and although many heads were cracked, all got away, save F. M. All, a discharged street car employee, who was shot through the aboden, and four prisoners.

Sergeant Conn Wickham and Policeman Robert Brown were severely injured by boulders and clubs. M. Ford, a youth, passing on a bicycle, was shot in the foot. Of the identified injured, all save M. F. All, will recover. All's condition is critical.

Tripped Trigger With Cane.

Smithtville, Tex., November 25.—M. U. Ducee, an old and highly respected citizen of Smithville, committed suicide yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock, using a shotgun loaded with buckshot. He placed the muzzle of the gun against his bared breast and tripped the trigger with his cane. Death was instantaneous. Ducee was in bad health. A widow and seven children survive him.

METHODIST PREACHERS GET MARCHING ORDERS

North Georgia Conference Yesterday Announced Change in Location of Pastors.

FEW CHANGES MADE IN ATLANTA DISTRICT

Conference Adjourned Yesterday Afternoon at Cartersville After the Appointment of Ministers to Churches in North Georgia and Elsewhere—Much Prosperity Shown by the Methodists.

By GARNETT W. QUILLIAN.

Cartersville, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—The forty-first session of the North Georgia conference came to a close this afternoon, and Bishop Seth Ward read the appointments of the Methodist preachers for the ensuing year.

Just before the appointments were read Bishop Ward in an appropriate speech expressed his appreciation to the ministers for their uniform courtesy, and said to them that while it was true that all of them could not have the appointments which they desired, that it was necessary to take time about, and that "every one have a fair deal," and that probably next year they could be better pleased with their appointments.

Few changes were made in the Atlanta district, the most important being the removal of Rev. J. H. Eakes from the office of presiding elder to the presiding elder's office of the Griffin district, and the appointment of Rev. Joel T. Daves to the office of presiding elder of the Atlanta district.

Rev. John B. Robins, who was presiding elder of the LaGrange district, was appointed as pastor of the First Methodist church, Rome, Georgia, in place of Dr. C. O. Jones, who goes to Trenton, N. J.

When the appointment of Rev. G. W. Duval as pastor of the Cartersville church was read out, the congregation, which was largely composed of the members of the church, could not contain themselves for their joy, and cheered the bishop, and indulged in a generous handclapping. Mr. Duval has been pastor of the church for three years and in that time has endeared himself to the people, and was largely instrumental in erecting the new Sam Jones memorial church structure.

The appointments in full follow:

Atlanta District.

Joel T. Daves, presiding elder; Wesley Memorial, R. F. Eakes; First church, J. S. French; St. Mark's, S. K. Belk; Grace, C. C. Jarrell; St. Paul's, H. L. Edmondson; Trinity and mission, J. W. Lee; St. John's, H. C. Christian; Asbury, C. V. Weathers; Inman Park and Copenhill, H. B. Mays and F. G. Word supply; Payne Memorial, W. T. Hunnycutt; Park Street and Bonnie Brae, M. L. Troutman; Walker Street, W. T. Hamby; St. Luke's, G. W. Griner; English Avenue and Jefferson Street, W. W. Brinsfield; Nellie Dodd, M. L. Underwood; St. James', T. R. Kendall, Jr.; East Atlanta and East End.

LOCAL DISTRICT GIVEN NEW HEAD

Joel T. Daves Made Presiding Elder of Atlanta District.

FEW CHANGES IN DISTRICT

Pastors in All the Large Methodist Episcopal Churches in Atlanta Remain the Same—James Eakes Goes to Griffin District.

When Bishop Seth Ward announced the appointments for the North Georgia conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, yesterday afternoon in Cartersville, Atlanta was given a new presiding elder, but outside of this change the list of preachers for 1908 looks very much like the one of 1907.

James H. Eakes, who has served as presiding elder, and in that position has won the admiration and love of thousands in Atlanta, was changed to presiding elder of the Griffin district. Joel T. Davies, presiding elder of the Griffin district, was named to a similar position in the Atlanta district.

The pastors of all the large central churches remain the same. There were a few switches, however, in some of the suburban and smaller churches.

Rev. Wallace Rogers was made the new head of the College Park church, in place of Rev. W. H. LaPrade. Rev. C. M. Lipham succeeds Rev. A. M. Pierce at the Epworth church. Rev. A. F. Nunn comes to Atlanta to take charge of the Atlanta Heights church, whose former pastor was Rev. E. W. Jones. Rev. W. T. Bell is given charge of the Battle Hill and West Side, following Rev. C. L. Pattillo. At Asbury church Rev. C. V. Weathers will be the new minister, following Rev. J. H. Little.

Rev. W. W. Brinsfield was appointed pastor of the English Avenue and Clara Street church in the place of Rev. B. E. L. Timmons, deceased; and Rev. E. D. Hale, at Kirkwood, will go to another district, his place being filled by Rev. J. W. Stepe.

BISHOP CANDLER PRESIDES.

Georgian, Who Has Been Ill in Texas, Has Recovered.

Sherman, Tex., November 25.—Bishop Candler, of Atlanta, Ga., who has been ill at this place for some days, was sufficiently recovered today to preside at the session of the North Texas Methodist Episcopal conference.

Last Week at Jamestown.

Norfolk, Va., November 25.—Army and navy day, with Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, United States navy, retired, and Brigadier General Joe R. Davis, judge advocate general of the United States army, as the central figures of attraction, was the feature today in the auspicious opening of the final week of the Jamestown exposition. Admiral Schley, accompanied by Mrs. Schley and General Davis will participate in the Fitzhugh Lee celebration at the exposition tomorrow.

TOXIC INSANITY MOVED WOMAN TO KILL LOVER

Dr. Barton, Alienist, Describes Madness That Gripped Mrs. Bradley.

CRAZED BY THE ASSAULTS ON HER NERVOUS SYSTEM

Dr. Barton Based His Opinion on a Hypothetical Question, 13,000 Words in Length, Covering History of Mrs. Bradley's Relations With Brown.

Washington, November 25.—That Mrs. Annie M. Bradley was insane at the time she shot former Senator Arthur Brown of Utah, in this city, on December 8, last, was the opinion of Dr. Wilfred M. Barton, of the medical department of Georgetown university and a specialist in nervous diseases, expressed at the trial of Mrs. Bradley today. Dr. Barton's testimony followed the reading to him of a hypothetical question of 13,000 words covering the history of Mrs. Bradley's relations with Senator Brown from the day she met him to the day of the tragedy.

Dr. Barton diagnosed Mrs. Bradley's ailment as being toxic or puerpural insanity, caused by what he described as the continued assaults upon her nervous system due to the abortions which she had had performed upon her. In explaining why he looked upon her as an abnormal woman, he said she was interested in things that do not usually attract women, and instanced the fact that she was secretary of a political club as an evidence of her abnormality.

Dr. Barton was on the stand practically the entire day, and was subjected to a severe cross-examination by the district attorney, aided by the government insanity experts, Dr. Smith E. Jelliffe of New York and Dr. Edward S. Brush of Baltimore. Dr. Barton proved to be a good witness for the defense. His testimony showing his conclusions as to Mrs. Bradley's insanity was unshaken.

Mrs. Bradley Pale and Haggard.

The defendant came into court today looking pale and haggard, evidently in anticipation that, after all, the question of her sanity or insanity at the time of the commission of the act was the paramount issue in the case. While at times she exhibited the keenest interest in all that was said, she generally seemed in a condition of mental dejection. As has been the case throughout the trial she displayed much emotion upon hearing references to the love that existed between her and Senator Brown as made known through their letters. While she today shed no tears, she frequently bowed her head and closed her eyes for long periods apparently oblivious to all that was going on around her. When the session for the day was over her face had a distinct expression of sadness.

Dr. Britton D. Evans, medical director of the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane, will go on the stand tomorrow, and later Dr. Charles D. Hill, of Baltimore, medical officer of the Mount Hope Retreat and St. Joseph's sanitarium, of that city, will be called. They will both testify for the defense. For the prosecution, Dr. Smith E. Jel-liffe, of New York, and Dr. Edward S. Brush, of Baltimore, will give testimony later. Dr. Evans and Dr. Jelliffe were both witnesses for the defense in the Thaw case, but they are on opposite sides of the Bradley case.

The Hypothetical Question.

There were three questions embraced in the hypothetical question, which were only propounded after Judge Powers had presented a complete analysis of the case, bringing out especially the points indicative of mental unsoundness on the part of the defendant. The questions were as follows:

1. Assuming all these facts to be true what do you say as to whether or not, at the time the fatal shot was fired, the patient understood the nature of her act, was able to choose and distinguish right from wrong, and was able to control herself to choose the right and avoid the wrong?

2. Assuming all these facts to be true, what do you say as to whether or not when the fatal shot was fired, the patient was mentally responsible for what she did?

3. Assuming all these facts to be true, what do you say as to whether, when the fatal shot was fired, the patient was sane or insane?

The statement of the case was read from typewritten copy prepared by Attorney George Hoover, and was deliberately and carefully presented by Judge Powers. Mrs. Bradley's name was not mentioned, but all the facts were given as applying to "a woman 35 years of age," which is the age of Mrs. Bradley.

The reading of the hypothetical question was concluded at 2 o'clock. Dr. Barton declared in answer to questions by the defense that at the time the fatal shot was fired Mrs. Bradley did not understand the nature of her act, nor was she able to distinguish right from wrong, and that, therefore, she was not able to choose the right and avoid the wrong.

When Insanity Began and Ended.

Cross-examined by District Attorney Baker, the witness said he was unable to say when Mrs. Bradley's insanity commenced.

"Will you make any positive statement as to when her insanity ended?" asked the district attorney.

"Yes. Toxic or puerperal insanity usually lasts anywhere from a few weeks to several months."

"So, that if this woman was insane at the time the fatal shot was fired, according to your opinion, she ought to have remained insane for several months?"

"I would not say that," the witness replied. "Sometimes they recover in a few weeks and sometimes they last on an average of a few months."

"At least," inquired Mr. Baker, "she ought to be insane for a few days or a few weeks?"

"Yes."

As these questions were asked, Mrs. Bradley sat up in her chair for a time and followed the testimony with keen interest. Then she relapsed into her apparent stupor in which she had been in the most of the day.

"There is in this hypothetical question," said Dr. Barton, "strong evidence of hereditary insanity as she had two aunts who were insane and her grandmother was insane."

Witness based his opinion of Mrs. Bradley's insanity largely upon the fact of her having had criminal operations performed, having been in a delicate condition seven times. She had been made to suffer much mental anguish, and had suffered symptoms of septic affection, he said. "From my own experience," he said, "and from my knowledge of authorities on the subject and taking into consideration all the facts in the case I believe the woman was suffering from toxic insanity."

Women Make Threats of All Sorts.

There was nothing in her conduct after she arrived in this city and when at the hotel that was in conflict with his view that she was insane, witness declared.

"Suppose a person carrying out a threat that was made on two occasions before, what would that have to do with it?"

"I do not think the making of threats would have anything to do with it. Women make threats of all sorts."

During the giving of this expert testimony Mrs. Bradley covered her face with her gloved hand and her head shook convulsively. The court room was hushed in silence and auditors bent forward, listening with rapt faces to the words of the expert, who made himself very clear in stating his belief that Mrs. Bradley, from all points of view, was of unsound mind when she shot Senator Brown.

"You intend to say this hypothetical question shows a diseased mind?" asked Attorney Baker, continuinng his questions.

"Yes."

"And you do not know what kind of insanity it is?"

"I have an opinion as to what her insanity was; it was of a depressive kind, accompanied by the outburst that is alleged to have occurred."

"When did this insanity occur?"

"I cannot say except that it occurred previous to this act."

"Did she have memory?"

"Yes, she might have had memory for some things; her mind might not have been completely paralyzed. In this hypothetical question she gave some description of the occurrence, but I see nothing in that to make me doubt her insanity."

"If she gave a clear statement of her movements in Utah and journey east and said she finally killed him because he would not carry out his promise to marry her, would that change your opinion as to her insanity?" witness was asked.

He said it would not. The district attorney concluded the cross-examination at 3:10 o'clock and court adjourned until tomorrow.

HE URGES PRAYER AND SIMPLE LIFE

Notable Address of Admiral Schley at Jamestown.

NATION BOOMED BY PRAYER

Admiral Says That Greatness of the American People Today Is Answer to the Prayers of the Early Colonists.

Norfolk, Va., November 25.—Army and Navy day, with Admiral Dinfield Scott Schley, United States navy, retired, and Brigadier General George B. Davis, judge advocate general of the United States army, as the central figures of attention, were the features today in the opening of the final week of the Jamestown exposition.

Schley Urges Simple Life.

Admiral Schley, in a notable address, which evoked great enthusiasm, urged that the nation, learning the great object lesson of the exposition, should renew its fealty to the simple life, and resolves of the old colonists.

"No nation can endure for long," he asserted, "which forgets its duty to God, and where the faith of the Father's is laid aside in the struggle for temporary gain. This is the lesson that the exposition emphasizes: That the basic foundation of the nation's greatness was laid in the virtuous lives, the simple resolves and primitive habits of the early settlers of Jamestown, who, with the Bible in one hand and the fear of God in their hearts, respected law and liberty.

Nation's Greatness Due to Prayer.

"We who believe in the efficacy of prayer, believe that the prosperity and happiness today of the American people, unequalled ever in all the world, is the answer to the prayers of the early colonists. It is with this thought uppermost in mind that I come from a neighboring state across the Potomac to pay a tribute of acknowledgement to the Virginia of John Smith, George Washington, Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson, R. E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson and many others of the sons who made this great commonwealth."

In paying his tribute to the personnel of the army and navy, Admiral Schley denied that the men being trained to fight made them thirst for war.

"On the contrary," he declared, "all over the world the men and officers of the army and navy are uniformly humane and universally kind."

General Davis devoted his address largely to a tribute to the faithfulness to duty of the men and officers of the army and the navy.

SAY DOCTOR VIOLATED ANTI-NARCOTIC LAW

The enforcement of the anti-narcotic law presented itself in an altogether new phase yesterday afternoon when officers served Dr. J. V. M. Cain with a copy of charges summonsing him to appear before the recorder at 8:30 this morning to anwser to a charge of the violation of the anti-drug law.

Probation Officer Coogler ordered the case made.

Mr. Coogler said that W. D. Jordan, an inebriate who was put on probation by Judge Broyles a few days ago, went to the office of Dr. Cain Saturday and obtained a prescription calling for ten grains of cocaine. This, Officer Coogler says, was a direct violation of the law by the doctor, the law providing that such narcotics can only be prescribed for confirmed users of the drug, and then only by the regular physician in charge of the patient asking the prescription. Officer Coogler further affirms that Jordan was not a user of the drug, and further that he was not under the care of Dr. Cain, but was under treatment of Dr. W. B. Parks, who has taken in hand the inebriates who have been placed on the probation list.

Dr. Cain seemed to regret the whole affair very much. He told how, on Saturday, a man whose name was unknown to him at the time, entered his office in a most pitiable plight and alleging that he was a cocaine fiend, begged for enough drug to cease his cravings. Dr. Cain says that he at first refused to prescribe, and that upon his refusal, Jordan fell down on the floor, saying that he was about to die. The doctor says that he examined the pulse and found it very weak. The face and expression of the eyes, too, gave evidence of the extreme suffering of the unfortunate man.

Several other doctors declared that they believed Dr. Cain had acted in good faith, and only with the best intentions, and eachsaid that placed in a similar place, he would, in all likelihood, have done the same thing.

MONEY BASIS IN TEN DAYS

Robert J. Lowry Returns from Banquet in Chicago.

BUSINESS MEN IN POLITICS

Robert Lowry Believes They Would Help Solve Some Puzzling Questions—He Spoke at the National Business League Dinner.

"My trip to Chicago convinced me that the country will, within a very short time, be back on a currency basis, and certificates be called in," said Robert J. Lowry last night. Mr. Lowry had just returned to Atlanta from a trip to Chicago, where he represented the south at the big banquet given by the National Business League.

"I would not be at all surprised to see the cash payments resumed within a week or ten days. The financial situation is about normal once more, and many cities are ready to get back on the old basis.

"Our banquet was a most enjoyable affair. The league is an old and well established one, and the dinner was attended by about 250 of the most prominent men in America.

"The league has never entered into politics, but that part of my speech in which I suggested that the time was near for the entrance of the business men of the country into politics received a great deal of applause. We need men in politics to handle the complex business problems of the present day, men who have a grasp on financial affairs. We want men who are not thinking of their political tomorrow, but are intent on making a better today. Politicians are too much inclined to look into the political future at the expense of the practical present.

"While in Chicago I saw my old friend, ex-Secretary of the Treasury Shaw. His speech at the banquet, some said, indicated that he was thinking of entering the race for president. I rather believe he has the political bee buzzing around his ear."

REBUKE GIVEN TO ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., November 25.—An opinion of the judge advocate general of the army, General George B. Davis, approved by Acting Secretary Oliver, was made public today holding that having regard to the mandatory requirements of the law the use of troops from Jefferson barracks, at the recent balloon competitions at St. Louis, was not warranted by law.

The papers in the case show that the request for the detail of troops to assist in the management and control of the balloons was addressed by the Aero Club and the Business Men's League to the president, who directed Lieutenant Colonel Evans to render every assistance in his power to the organizations mentioned in conducting the international balloon races.

"Under our system of government," General Davis says, "the maintenance of civil orders, however, seriously it may be threatened or disturbed, is a function of the government of the several states and federal assistance is only authorized in certain cases, provided for in the constitution, in which the proper department of a state government may call upon the president for assistance in the establishment, restoration or maintenance of public order. It is assumed that no emergency existed in St. Louis, on October 21 last, of a character to suggest the necessity or propriety of federal itnerference, or which the local civil authorities of the state were not entirely able to control."

BATTLESHIPS ARE ALL RIGHT

Admiral Capps Answers the Critics of the American Navy.

Washington, November 25.—From time to time during the past few months there have appeared in various publications comments concerning alleged defects in vessels of the navy, and particularly in battleships and armored cruisers. In answers to these, Rear Admiral Capps, chief of the bureau of construction and repair, has devoted much the larger part of his annual report to the secretary of the navy just made public.

Admiral Capps courts responsibility for the ships' designs such as they are, and says the highest tribute to his predecessors in the office of chief constructor, Hichborn and Bowles, and to Admiral Converse, all now either retired or out of the service, for the work did in planning the ships. Of the latter he says:

"The present battleship fleet of the United States navy is fully equal in all respects to that of any equal number of vessels in any other navy designed during the same period."

Thomas R. Roulhac, Sheffield, Ala.

Sheffield, Ala., November 25.—Thomas R. Roulhac, former United States district attorney for the northern district of Alabama under President McKinley and Roosevelt, died here today of pneumonia. At the time of his death he was president of the Tennessee River Improvement Association. He was 61 years of age.

Schooner Bird Still Aground.

Delaware Breakwater, Del., November 25. The schooner R. M. Bird, from Charleston for New York, which went ashore in the storm yesterday, is still hard aground. The vessel is badly strained and full of water. Captain Boldt and the crew, who refused to leave the schooner when it first went aground, have been taken off, and the vessel may be a total loss.

COIN IS TOSSED BY ROOSEVELT

In Order to Settle Patronage of South Dakota.

LONG DISPUTE IS SETTLED

Senators Couldn't Agree, and Roosevelt Suggested That Matter Be Settled by Flipping a Coin. Kittridge Won on the Toss.

Washington, November 25.—The white house was the scene of a lottery drawing today by which the federal patronage of the state of South Dakota was disposed of. The president of the United States turned the wheel of fortune, and Senators Kittridge and Gamble drew out the prize packages.

There was a large number of vacant offices in the state, due to the fact that the two senators have been unable to agree upon appointments, thus permitting the old officeholders to retain their positions long beyond the time to which they were appointed. The senators met in the president's office today by appointment to agree, if possible, upon a distribution; but when they confronted the president they found themselves just as far apart as they have been in his absence.

The president saw the difficulty, and proposed that they draw lots. The senators agreed, and the position of bank examiner being the place in immediate dispute, the president tossed up a coin, saying that heads meant that Kittredge should win, and tails Senator Gamble should name his man. The piece of money fell heads up, and the nomination was awarded to Mr. Kittridge. Both appearing satisfied with this method of disposing of the problem, the president suggested that all vacancies be filled after the same manner, and accordingly the names of the various officers were written upon slips of paper. The two senators then proceeded to the drawing.

The result of the lottery will be that the president will be guided by it in designating officials to fill the vacancies, Senator Kittridge recommending for the offices which he drew and Senator Gamble for the others. The agreement was hastily made, and concerns only the matter of nomination, each senator receiving the right to oppose the confirmation of a person nominated at the instance of the other.

ASSASSIN KILLS CAROLINA GIRL

Ella Pryor Is Called to Door of Home and Shot Dead.

Charlotte, N. C., November 25.—Ella Pryor, an 18-year-old white girl, living with her mother, Mrs. Neely Pryor, near Gilead church, was called out of the residence tonight, and shot to death by an unknown person. The tragedy took place just after dark. A few minutes before the gun fired some one knocked on the door, and one of the smaller girls went to the door, but saw no one. Ella was called by her sister, and when she reached the door was fired on from the road and instantly killed.

The news of the shooting spread rapidly, and a posse is now scouring the woods for the assassin. At a late hour the guilty party had not been apprehended.

DIPLOMAT TIRES OF THIS WORLD

COMMITTED INDISCRETION

Because of it Bombalier Was Forced to Leave Boarding House—He Brooded Over Matter and Finally Attempted to Kill Himself.

Washington, November 25.—R. M. Bombalier, acting chancellor of the Cuban legation here, was tonight found in his apartments with the gas turned on. He was removed to a hospital where his condition was said to be serious.

He left two notes, one of which was addressed to the public, and said:

"Goodby everybody, I am going to leave this world because I have not the courage to endure it."

The second note was addressed to Senor Don Arturo Padro, charge d'affaires of the Cuban legation. Its contents are not known.

Senor Bombalier resided at the Douglas apartments, bu before taking up his residence there a few days ago he occupied apartments at the home of Dr. D. F. Pyle. About a week ago Senor Bombalier is said to have incurred the displeasure of Dr. Pyle by an act of indiscretion, which resulted in his being requested to quit the house. Afterward Senor Padro called on Dr. Pyle, and asked him if the matter could not be adjusted. Dr. Pyle relented so far as to shake hands with the young diplomat, but refused to allow Senor Bombalier to occupy his former apartments. Senor Bombalier, though assured by Senor Padro that the incident was closed, continued to brood over it. No one suspected, however, that the young diplomat contemplated suicide. Hope is entertained for his recovery. Senor Bombalier is about twenty-five years of age.

WATSON FOR GREENBACKS

amount of notes actually burnt during this period of contracting was about $44,000,000.

"So matters stood until the panic of 1873. In response to the popular demand for more money, the government reissued $26,000,000 to take the place of the money which had been destroyed.

"Then, in 1875, congress passed an act requiring that all the greenbacks, over and above $300,000,000, be destroyed.

"So the government went into the money-burning business again. But the people cried out so angrily against the contractionists that congress passed the act of 1878, requiring that whenever a greenback note was destroyed another note, of the same amount, of course, should be issued to take its place.

"The total amount of the greenback money saved from destruction is, in round numbers, $346,500,000.

"How much of this has been lost by fire, by flood, by the various ways in which people lose portable stuff, we have no means of knowing.

Could Issue Greenbacks.

"Now what is President Roosevelt authorized by act of congress to do? He can follow the precedent of 1873 and reissue money in place of that which congress said might be destroyed. He could issue greenbacks to the full amount authorized by the acts of 1862 and 1863.

"That amount having been $450,000,000, Mr. Roosevelt could immediately and legally issue $103,500,000 in greenbacks. These would bear no interest, would form a permanent part of the currency and would therefore be a permanent benefit to the country.

"Mr. Roosevelt and his advisers have evidently overlooked the acts of 1862 and 1863; also the precedent of 1873.

"The president has based his action in this crisis on the Spanish war acts of congress."

FACING ARREST HE TOOK POISON

Louis Straus, of New York, Kills Self Before Detectives.

HE FORGED BILL OF LADING

Family of Straus Said That He Had Lost About $200,000 by the Recent Decline of Securities in Wall Street.

New York, November 25.—Rather than face charges to obtaining $5,000 on a forged bill of lading, Louis Straus, a mining broker, swallowed a quantity of poison at his home here tonight, and died a few minutes later. At the time two detectives were in the house and about to place Straus under arrest. When warned of his probable arrest several days ago by William A. Avis, of the firm of William A. Avis & Co., custom house brokers, on whose complaint the warrant for the arrest was issued, Straus threatened to kill himself.

Avis charged the mining broker with negotiating a loan of $5,000 on a bill of lading for ore, said to be worth $7,500, and supposedly shipped from the west. Avis stats that not longer after the loan was negotiated he discovered that the bill of lading was worthless.

Straus' family said tonight that he had lost about $200,000 in the recent decline in Wall street, and had been much depressed. The family said they knew nothing of his trouble over the loan from Avis.

INTENDED PRISONER WOUNDS DEPUTY MARSHAL.

Draper Was Attacked by Mitchell With Shotgun While Trying to Make an Arrest

Knoxville, Tenn., November 25.—Deputy United States Marshal Joseph E. Draper was shot and perhaps fatally wounded in the home of John Mitchell, a man he had arrested on a federal warrant.

Mitchell attacked the deputy with a knife. Pulling his pistol, Draper fired the only bullet he had in his weapon, holding his prisoner with one hand. Mitchell called to his wife to hand him his shotgun, and fired a shot at the deputy, the shot taking effect in the deputy's right side, seriously wounding him. Mitchell and his wife escaped, going in the direction of the North Carolina mountains.

NO DIVISION FOR METHODISTS

North Georgia Conference Refused to Create a Third.

RESOLUTIONS VOTED DOWN

Three Ministers Asked for Division, but Request Was Defeated—Reports From All Churches Evince Great Growth Among Methodists.

By GARNETT W. QUILLIAN.

Cartersville, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—The north Georgia conference placed itself on record today, just before the appointments were read by Bishop Ward, as opposed to a division of the conference.

Three ministers prepared a set of resolutions asking for the appointment of a committee to outline the boundary lines for two new conferences to be made up from the north Georgia conference next year. This resolution was voted down by an overwhelming majority, thus showing that almost the entire conference is opposed to a division.

The last day of the conference session was called to order at 9 o'clock and Rev. Richard Wilkinson, pastor of St. James' church, Augusta, conducted the devotional exercises, and the business of the conference was resumed.

The roll call of the pastors of the churches throughout the conference was concluded, all of their characters were passed, and the reports rendered by them showed the churches to be in a prosperous condition.

Beautiful Tribute to Sam Jones.

W. D. Upshaw, the vice president of the Anti-Saloon League of Georgia, was introduced to the conference and in a characteristic speech spoke of the work of driving out the whisky traffic in the south, and spoke of the work of the late Rev. Sam P. Jones in behalf of prohibition. At the close of Mr. Upshaw's speech Bishop Ward paid a most beautiful tribute to the memory of Mr. Jones and his influence against the liquor traffic. He said in part: "This is a beautiful church and appropriately named in honor of a great man. I stood on yesterday with uncovered head above his ashes, and I want to say this morning, Sam Jones did more to make this great wave for prohibition possible than any man in fifty years."

Dr. Cofer With Roosevelt.

The report of The Wesleyan Christian Advocate was read, and Rev. M. J. Cofer made an earnest plea in behalf of the conference organ. He called attention to the difficulties encountered in publishing a paper, and said that the price of paper had increased considerably within the past few years; that Mr. Roosevelt was making a fight against the trust, and that he was with him on this question, as on most every other question.

Bishop Ward complimented Dr. Cofer and the conference on their most excellent paper by saying that among the very large number of papers which came into his home, The Wesleyan Christian Advocate was among the very best, and that he knew the pastors would rally to its support.

Rev. J. R. Stewart, agent for the endowment fund for superannuated preachers, was introduced to the conference, and spoke in behalf of the cause which he represented. Rev. W. A. Parks gave an interesting report of the American Bible Society, which showed that within the past ninety-one years of its organization, more than 80,000,000 Bibles and Testaments have been issued by the society.

Rev. Luke Johnson read an interesting report of the board of education, showing much progress in the various institutions of learning under the control of the Methodist church in north Georgia. Practically all of the institutions are overcrowded, and need an increased endowment to carry on the great work of Christian education.

Fitting resolutions concerning the death of Colonel I. E. Shumate, of Dalton, Ga., who was an efficient member of the board of education, were read and adopted by the conference.

Dupont Guerry Made Address.

Hon. Dupont Guerry, president of Wesleyan Female college at Macon, delivered an interesting and forceful address to the conference. He said that while little had been heard from Wesleyan college, the influence of this institution was being felt all over the state. He stated that on the roll there were 474 students, and that during the past four years one hundred girls had gone forth to be teachers.

The institution, he said, represented the church to which it belonged, and that the general health of the student body was excellent. He spoke of the spiritual influence being exerted upon the young ladies, and that they were taking special interest in the cause of missions, doing a large per cent of the missionary work in the churches in Macon. Hon. Dupont Guerry discussed the financial condition of Wesleyan, and urged the pastors of the churches of the conference to lend their aid in carrying on the great work of the oldest and best college for women in the world.

The confernce went into legal session and transacted a considerable amount of business. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, W. P. Lovejoy; vice president, T. J. Christian; treasurer, J. T. Lowe.

The report of Rev. John G. Logan, the statistical secretary of the conference, shows the progress of the church during the conference year.

There have been received into the churches of the North Georgia conference during the year 1907 5,211 members on profession of faith, being an increase over last year of 729. Deducting those who have died or who have been removed by certificate, there is a net increase of 2,137 in membership. There are 752 Sunday schools, with an attendance of 66,244 officers and pupils.

The present total membership of the church within the bounds of the conference is 106,580. The total value of all church property is $2,578,757.54. On this property is carried $776,800 insurance. Expended during the year on construction and improvement of churches and parsonages $246,243.

Raised for missions, including church extension, which is really a missionary fund, $99,740.21. Collected for the American Bible Society $883.4.

Total cash raised for all purposes $733,152.18, an average of $6.87 per member.

Afternoon Session.

At the afternoon session the bishop carried on the business of the conference with considerable rapidity.

Rev. W. T. Hamby read an interesting report on the Epworth League work of the church, which showed much interest among the young people.

Hon. John F. Bale read an interesting report concerning the plan to build homes for the superannuated preachers.

The report from the temperance committee was read. This report referred to the fact that a great victory for prohibition had been won in the state of Georgia. Greetings were sent to Oklahoma, and expressions of pleasure to Alabama at their victory against the evil traffic.

Services in January.

It was recommended that on the first Sunday in January that all denominations would unite with the Methodist in reading Psalm, 126, and stand and sing, "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," in celebration of the passage of the bill, which will at that time have become a law, the effect of which will close every open barroom in the state.

Dr. I. S. Hopkins read an interesting report of the committee on books and periodicals.

Rev. R. C. Cleckler was elected a member of the board of education in place of Rev. J. T. Daves, resigned.

A gift of $5,000 from A. K. Hawkes, the Atlanta optician, to be used in providing homes for the worn-out preachers, was announced today.

Suitable resolutions expressing appreciation to the people of Cartersville for their entertainment were adopted.

THE $500 GUARANTEE FOR BUSINESS SCHOOL CONTEST HAS NOT BEEN DEPOSITED

NEITHER HAS MR. ARNOLD BEEN INVITED TO PARTICIPATE IN THE PREPARATION OF THE CONTEST CONTRACT.

To the Public:

I notice in The Constitution and Journal of November 24 that Mr. Bagwell states, with reference to the proposed students' contest, that he has deposited the $500, and that the contract is being drawn up.

Although he claims to be running a business school, I wish to suggest to him that one of the fundamental principles of business is that two or more persons are required to make a contract. Mr. B. is evidently drawing up the contract to suit his own purpose, as he has not as yet invited me to assist him in its execution. I requested him also to go with me to the bank and we would each deposit $500 as a guarantee of good faith. Although he states that the money has been deposited, he did not comply with my request by going with me to the bank and I have no knowledge whatever as to where the money has been deposited.

No Answer to My Denial.

I have stated that the five prominent claims made for the Chartier system of shorthand are misrepresentations. Why does Mr. B. not contradict my statement and submit the proof that his claims are true? I again challenge him to publish the names of one hundred "leading" business colleges that are teaching the Chartier system. He claims that two hundred "leading" colleges are teaching it. Then certainly he should be able to produce the names of one hundred.

Those References.

If the majority of Mr. Bagwell's pupils are competent within three months' study, it seems that after a run of eighteen months he should be able to give two or three hundred references instead of the trivial number of twenty-four, for it will be remembered that he advertised an enrollment of 60 pupils in one single month. But I especially request those interested to make inquiry about every one of those twenty-four so-called three months' students, not a few of them, but all, and a smile will come over the investigator's face.

PASTORS MEET AT BRUNSWICK

Vanguard of South Georgia Conference Arrives.

MANY APPLICANTS PRESENT

Brunswick Is Preparing to Entertain Methodist Ministers During Stay in City—Large Delegations of Applicants Are Arriving Fast.

Brunswick, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—Many of the delegates of the South Georgia conference have already arrived in the city, and others are expected tonight and tomorrow. The advance delegations are composed largely of the class of applicants for admission on trial into the conference and the classes of graduates and their committeemen, who will spend Tuesday in doing the preliminary examination work. To be admitted into full connection of a Methodist conference and receive deacon's orders requires the successful passage of several rigid examinations, which are given for four years, at intervals of one year. Several social functions have been planned by the citizens of Brunswick for the entertainment of the south Georgia Methodists, a boat ride to Frederica, an oyster roast, etc.

Rev. F. Cook, manager of the young people's department of missions, with headquarters in Nashville, Tenn., has arrived in the city and will preach at First church tomorrow evening. The Brunswick Rifles will attend this service in uniform. Rev. Mr. Cook was pastor of McKendree church in this city from 1890 to 1894 and pastor of First church from 1894 to 1898, thus serving an efficient pastorate here of eight successive years, after which he went to Cuba during the Spanish-American war as chaplain of the Brunswick Rifles.

UNITY CLUB'S SERVICE ON THANKSGIVING EVE

The sixth annual union Thanksgiving service, under the auspices of the Unity Club, will be held, according to established custom, at the Jewish temple, corner South Pryor and Richardson streets, on the evening of Thanksgiving day, beginning promptly at 8 o'clock. This service has become one of the established features of the city's observance of Thanksgiving day, and is eagerly anticipated by a large number of people. The different parts of the service will be filled this year by members of the Unity Club, and a splendid program of music will be given under the direction of Professor J. Fowler Richardson, by the Temple Quartet, augmented by a large chorus.

Among the musical numbers will be rendered: Kipling's "Recessional," by John Mullin and choir; a solo by Mr. Armour, Gounod's "Sanctus," and a "Harvest Song," by the choir; an organ solo by Professor Richarason, and the service will conclude with the singing of "America" by the congregation.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the service have assigned the following members of the Unity Club for duty on that occasion:

Opening address and welcome to the temple, by Rabbi David Marx.

Invocation—Rev. Alexander T. Bowser, pastor of Unitarian church.

Reading of the President's Thanksgiving Proclamation—Rev. A. F. Sherrell, of Atlanta Theological seminary.

Reading from Psalms—Rev. John S. Tilley, religious director of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Thanksgiving Address—Rev. E. Dean Ellenwood, pastor Universalist church.

Benediction—Rev. M. L. Troutman, pastor Park Street Methodist Episcopal church.

The Unity Club is an association of ministers of different religious beliefs, and enjoys the unique distinction of having conclusively demonstrated that differing credal conception does not prevent more profitable cooperation and genuine and delightful fellowship. Among its members the following religious denominations are represented: Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregationalist, Christian, Protestant Episcopal, Unitarian, Universalist and Reformed Jewish.

A very cordial invitation is extended to the general public to attend this union Thanksgiving service.

Was Almost a Dead Woman

AN OUNCE OF MORPHINE PER WEEK REQUIRED TO SUSTAIN HER.

"C. B. James, Memphis, Tenn.—Dear Sir: As you know, I went to your Sanatorium on the 12th of November, 1902. When I entered your Sanatorium for the treatment of the Drug Habit I was almost a dead woman, but after a three weeks' course of treatment I returned home not only cured of the Drug Habit, but greatly improved mentally and physically, and it is a horrible thought to me now, when I think that I was once a slave to morphine and that it took an ounce of morphine a week to keep me from suffering. Even when under the influence of this terrible drug, I was a miserable creature. I felt almost condemned. I must say, under your treatment I suffered no pain on account of the withdrawal of the drug. I slept well, enjoyed a good appetite and, now I have no desire for opiates of any kind.

RATES FIXED BY COMMISSION

Joint Passenger Fares Made 2 3-4 Cents for Alabama Points.

Montgomery, Ala., November 25.—(Special.)—The railroad commission has ordered that joint passenger rates between all points in the state be made by each road on a basis of 2 3-4 cents per mile, the date to be December 10. Roads which have not accepted the state rates are included, as well as those which have. An order is also issued allowing those lines which did accept the state rates to increase their rates to 2 3-4 cents a mile straight, 2 1-2 cents for family books and 2 1-4 cents for 2,000-mile books.

Still another order is issued allowing the Illinois Central and the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, in course of construction, to charge old rates until they get to regular service, passenger and freight included.

Governor Comer Signed Bills.

It turns out that Governor Comer signed all of the group rate bills which fix rates of freight and classify railroads, before he left for home Saturday. They were sent over to the secretary of state this afternoon. They include most of the penalty measures, those giving new power to the railroad commission and seeking to prevent discriminating and excessive charges of any kind. By these the right to enforce the orders of the railroad commission is taken from the commission and new means employed to enforce the orders, as well as contest them. With the signature of the governor to the bills, which become effective December 1, the new line of railroad laws are made effective.

Barrett is the man who was arrested upon the charge of stuffing the big mains in the heating plant of the new building with cement so as to keep the contractors from testing it.

Fined for Forgery.

Macon, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—Charlie Willis, the young white man charged with forging a name to a money order in Montgomery county for $5, was given a sentence of six months, with a fine of $50, by Judge Speer, in the federal court today. POSTMASTERS ELECT OFFICERS

Meeting at Macon Yesterday Was Well Attended.

CONVENTION ENDS TODAY

Over 127 Postmasters of Georgia Met in Macon Yesterday—Mrs. James Longstreet and Harry Stillwell Edwards Made Short Addresses.

Brown House, Macon, Ga., November 25.—Special.)—At a well-attended morning session of the presidential postmasters of Georgia in the city auditorium this morning, the state association was perfected with the following officers:

President Henry Blunn, Jr., of Savannah.

First Vice President Walter Akerman, of Cartersville.

Second Vice President C. W. Withoft, of Fort Valley.

Third Vice President H. F. Brimberry.

Treasurer J. A. Crawford.

Secretary Assistant Postmaster Pierce, of Savannah.

Of 127 members of the classes of postmasters represented there were 110 present. This was a large percentage of the membership. The local officials connected with the association made all arrangements for the sessions and Postmaster Edwards appeared early to do his part in making the session a success. Many persons were delayed on account of poor railway schedules and failure to make connections with the proper trains.

A large number of prominent ladies are in attendance with the delegates and the personnel of the convention is a happy, elevated one. Postmasters Woods, of Louisville; Caleb, of Richmond Briggs, of Raleigh; Bean, of Tampa, and Hopkins, of St. Clair, Mich.

The present meeting was an adjourned one from that held in Atlanta several weeks ago, and when the meeting was called to order Mrs. James Longstreet, of Gainesville, was in the chair. She made a short, impressive opening address. Postmaster Edwards, of Macon, was then called to the chair, and Postmaster Akerman, of Cartersville, read the report of the committee on organization. The constitution and by-laws were accepted and a nomination committee brought in the names of the officers elected.

The visitors were welcomed to the city by Rabbi Harry Weiss and Major Steve Crump, who spoke briefly. Hon. W. B. Spellman, superintendent of the rural free delivery service; Hon. George M. Sutton, head of the inspection for the southeastern division of the United States, and Hon. H. D. Temple, head of the money order and registry service, were among the early arrivals from Washington. Educational work was the order of the day, and many took part in the work. The sessions will last through tomorrow and then a number of the prominent officials will speak.

Hitchcock Not at Convention.

Macon, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—First Assistant General Postmaster Frank Hitchcock informed the Georgia postmasters that he would be unable to attend the convention here, owing to the necessity of his remaining with General Meyers in making up the annual report of the postmaster general.

Tonight Postmaster Briggs, of Raleigh, addressed the convention upon the postmaster's relation with the community. Miss Jewell, of Gainesville, sang for the convention. Tomorrow Postmaster Woods, of Louisville, and Postmaster Cabell, of Richmond, will deliver addresses.

Many ladies are in attendance. Gainesville sent a large delegation, who are making all efforts to capture the next session of the body. Georgia has twenty-five presidential appointees among the ladies in the convention.

TWO BURGLARS ARRESTED

The Gang That Has Been Working Around Albany Being Broken Up.

Albany, Ga., November 25.—(Special.) While searching the person of Frank Burton, a white burglar, held in the city barracks, charged with breaking into a number of Albany residences, the police discovered yesterday a pocket account book in which Burton had kept a careful account of all his stealings, showing the sum in cash realized from the sale of every stolen article.

When questioned by the officers, Burton admitted that the record was kept for the purpose of making possible a just division with his pals of the spoils of their operations. He refused to reveal the name of either of his companions in crime, though an effort was made to have him do so. As an illustration of that "honor among thieves," which is supposed to exist, the case is considered unique.

Another of the gang which has been infesting Albany for several weeks has been arrested. He gives his name as E. A. Webster, and a gold watch, which he had stolen from J. W. Hennessey, was found on his person.

ILLNESS OF MR. CLEVELAND

It Is Said Reports of His Condition Are Exaggerated.

Princeton, N. J., November 25.—It was declared at the residence of Grover Cleveland today that the report of his illness was exaggerated, and that he had been suffering only from an attack of indigestion, from which he had completely recovered this morning.

Dr. Carnochan, Mr. Cleveland's physician, visited the patient this morning, and afterwards stated that Mr. Cleveland was up and moving around the house and apparently showing no signs of yesterday's attack of his old enemy, from which he has suffered for years whenever he eats imprudently.

STONE DENIES REPORT.

Brands Charge L. & N. Is Going Into Hands of Receiver as Ridiculous.

Montgomery, Ala., November 25.—General Counsel Stone, who is here with Milton H. Smith, president of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, when told of a report that the road was going into the hands of a receiver to evade the state laws, said:

"The report is absolutely untrue and ridiculous. No such thing has been for a moment contemplated."

WILL CONTEST TAX LAW.

Soda Dealers Will Take Matter of Special Tax of Sirups to Courts.

Augusta, Ga., November 25.—(Special.) Believing that the special tax law as enacted by the last session of the state legislator, in so far as it relates to the manufacture of sirups to be used by soda fountains, will practically knock out their business, the dealers in Augusta are preparing to contest the enforcement of the law. The law provides for a special tax of $400 for each manufacturer of sirup.

Practically every soda water dealer in Augusta manufactures his own sirups now, contending that cheaper and better sirups are obtained than by buying frob a wholesaler, upon whom there is only the same $400 tax. They claim the new law encourages monopoly and restrains free trade.

LODGE HALL DEMOLISHED.

Secret Order Rooms of Negroes Blown to Atoms.

Albany, Ga., November 25.—(Special.) The news has reached here from Kestler, a small town in the lower part of Early county, that the secret order hall in that place used by the negro lodges of Masons and Odd Fellows was blown up by dynamite Saturday morning.

The explosion occurred at 12:30 o'clock, and the building was blown to atoms. The shock was terrific, and was felt for many miles around. This place has been the scene of considerable feeling between whites and blacks for some time, though it cannot be said with any degree of certainty that white people were responsible for the blowing up of the negroes' hall.

There is no clew to the identity of guilty parties.

MAN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Machine Belonging to Gov. Comer Runs Over Man in Birmingham.

Birmingham, Ala., November 25.—J. D. Biles, a carpenter, 53 years old, is dead as a result of injuries received by being run into by an automobile belonging to the governor Saturday. The negro chauffeur, Charles Lewis, was driving to the depot to meet Governor Comer coming up from Montgomery when Mr. Biles was run into on the approach to the viaduct. The injured man was picked up by the chauffeur, and carried to his home at East Lake, a suburb, and death followed twenty-four hours later. The chauffeur is under arrest, charged with murder.

THEY PLOTTED TO LOOT BANK

Two Employees and Depositor Said to Be in Conspiracy.

New York, November 25.—James Graham, assistant cashier of the Interborough bank, in Wall street, was arrested today, and charged with the forgery of a check for $2,900. James W. Daly, paying teller of the bank, and Alfred Burrows, a depositor, were also arrested on the charge of complicity in the forgery.

President Goodridge, of the Interborough bank, said today, with reference to the arrests:

"Upon an examination of the bank's books and cash a few days ago it was discovered that some small irregularities existed, and a careful and thorough investigation of all matters connected with the bank's business was instantly made. It was found that the assistant cashier and paying teller were involved to an extent of not to exceed $4,000. Both of these men were bonded in $30,000, and the bank is, of course, fully protected."

TO MAKE NEW YORK "DRY."

Great Crusade Is Being Planned by Prohibitionists.

New York, November 25.—Cheered by what they believe the beginning of the greatest temperance revival the country has ever seen, the prohibitionists of New York state are planning a crusade to move the state into the "dry" column. If Alabama and Georgia can be turned to prohibition, why not New York, they say. A state ticket will be put in the field, and the campaign to elect a legislature, which will pass a prohibition law next year, is being planned and will be actively carried on.

Tax Assessor to Be Appointed.

Augusta, Ga., November 25.—(Special.) Within the next few days Mayor W. M. Dunbar will appoint a temporary city tax assessor, to fill the office made vacant by the death of Colonel J. M. Weigle, until the January meeting of city council, when a permanent officer will be elected.

THE VALUE OF PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

Personal knowledge is the winning factor in the culminating contests of this competitive age and when of ample character it places its fortunate possessor in the front ranks of

The Well Informed of the World.

A vast fund of personal knowledge is really essential to the achievement of the highest excellence in any field of human effort.

A Knowledge of Forms, Knowledge of Functions and Knowledge of Products are all of the utmost value and in questions of life and health when a true and wholesome remedy is desired it should be remembered that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., is an ethical product which has met with the approval of the most eminent physicians and gives universal satisfaction, because it is a remedy of Known Quality, Known Excellence and Known Component Parts and has won the valuable patronage of millions of the Well Informed of the world, who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual use that it is the first and best of family laxatives, for which no extravagant or unreasonable claims are made.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent family laxative. As its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well Informed of the world to be the best we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of—Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, whether you call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

ARNOLD KNIT GOODS

(We Are the Only Atlanta Agents.)

There is a great difference between woven and knit fabrics. A woven fabric is made by straight threads crossing each other and interweaving, while in the knit fabric the threads are not straight, but in the form of a chain. The woven fabric will not yield easily to the motions of the body, is not so absorbent nor porous, and when stretched will not regain its shape. The elastic knit fabric used in these articles of underwear for infants and children is soft, pliable and healthful, porous, absorbent.

Any garment that is to be worn by a growing child should allow perfect freedom of motion. Flannels and muslins do not do this. The fabric is soft in texture and very elastic--lots of "give" in it. It never grows harsh or stiff from washing It is open and porous, so that the exhalations of the skin pass off easily. It does not shrink. It causes no rash or irritation of the delicate skin.

We carry a line of these sensible garments. They are popular, very popular, but we want all mothers to know about them,---they're so comfortable, so hygienic and so convenient.

FUNERAL OF SON TODAY; MOTHER DESPERATELY ILL

Mrs. M. A. Bailey, mother of Buford Bailey, the little boy who was killed by a car on Whitehall street Sunday afternoon, is reported to be critically ill at the residence of the family, 115 South Pryor street.

The news of the accident was first received by Mrs. Bailey on her return from the home of a friend, with whom she had spent the afternoon. She was prostrated by grief, and physicians, who were summoned, were only partially able to relieve her. It is said that since the reception of the news she has not apparently recognized any of the family or friends. She is, to all appearances, crazed by her great grief.

The body of little Buford was removed to the residence of the mother from the undertaking establishment of Harry G. Poole yesterday. During the day scores of the little comrades and other friends of the family called to view the corpse. Buford was loved by an unusually large number of friends, both young and old, to whom the news of his death came as a great shock.

The funeral services will be held at the residence this afternoon at 2 o'clock, interment following at Hollywood.

The report started by certain news dealers and published in The Constitution yesterday to the effect that little Buford was a newsboy was found to be a mistake. The money raised by the newsboys to defray the expenses of the funeral will be returned to the givers.

DUCKWORTH GOES TO WHITE HOUSE

Farmers' Union President Will Confer With Roosevelt Today.

Washington, Novemebr 25.—R. F. Duckworth, chairman of the legislative committee of the National Farmers' Union, and C. T. Ladson, attorney for that organization, arrived today from Atlanta, Ga., for the purpose of conferring with President Roosevelt on the subject of recommendations to congress for the betterment of the present financial situation.

They called on the president, and also upon the secretary of the treasury today, and arranged for a conference with the president tomorrow, at which Secretary Cortelyou will be present.

BLOUNT TALKS OF PHILIPPINES

Georgian Favors Independence Before a Mass Meeting in Boston.

Boston, Mass., November 25.—A mass meeting of citizens interested in the Philippine question was held in Faneuil hall tonight. Congressmen from three states spoke in support of ultimate independence for the Philipine islands, accompanied by neutralization of the territory.

Albert Pillsbury, formerly attorney general of Massachusetts, presided, and many prominent citizens sat on the platform.

Congressman James I. Slayden, of Texas, made a plea for immediate independence of the Philippines as a guaranty against possible war with Japan and China, and to diminish the immense expense of the islands to the government.

James H. Blount, of Georgia, who served as a judge in the Philippines, was the next speaker. Judge Blount said:

"Suppose the Filipino continues to manifest discontent? Are you going to say: 'All right; you may not like it, but what are you going t odo about it? I am determined to make you happy, and I am going to do it without regard to how long it takes, or how many of your men are left when the consummation is achieved.'

"After six years in the Philippines—two as a soldier and four as judge—my own conviction is that if we are going to colonize at all, we should do so with the brutal honesty of British; that at present we are throwing away all the previous experience of mankind; that we ought not to colonize at all, and that even now there is a noble and honorable way to correct the blunder.

"If three strong and able Americans familiar with insular conditions, and still young enough to undertake the task, were told by a president, by authority of congress to go out there, 'and set up a respectable native government in ten years, and then come away,' they could and would do it, and that government would be a success, and one of the greatest moral victories in the annals of free government would have been written by the gentlemen concerned upon the pages of their country's history."

The closing address of the evening was given by Congressman Samuel W. McCall, of Massachusetts.

COTTON FIRM LOSES IN SUIT

Harrison Estate Was Fought by a New York Concern.

Brown House, Macon, Ga., November 25.—(Special.)—Through Judge John P. Ross and A. J. Dupree, attorneys, the estate of J. B. Harrison, deceased, lately a citizen of Zebulon, Pike county, gained a decided victory over J. H. Parker & Co., members of the New York cotton exchange, in a suit brought in the United States court through a settlement that was made today, taking the case from the dockets of the court. Several months ago the New York concern filed suit against the estate, and required E. J. Stanford, administrator, to answer their claim for $2,700 on cotton futures said to have been the interests of the deceased Harrison. An answer was made, and the matter was to have been tried today, but the cotton exchange people weakened, and the settlement sent them away with an amount much smaller than they claimed.

Grace May Enter Race.

Macon, Ga., November 25.—(Special.) It is stated that Solicitor General William Brunson is to have opposition for his office in the coming primary in Bibb. Attorney Walter Grace, of this city, is said to be quietly making his plans for the race against the present solicitor general, and there will be some lively times when the two strong citizens are pitted against each other in the vote-getting.

JUDGE AGAINST PISTOL TOTING

Would Fine Officials of Law for Carrying Concealed Weapons.

Columbus, Ga., November 26.—(Special.) Judge J. H. Martin created somewhat of a sensation in superior court today when he announced that if a sheriff, deputy or police officer was convicted in his court of carrying a concealed weapon, the fine would be the same that is given other violators of the law. He said that an officer has a right to go armed, but not to conceal the weapon. Incidentally the judge raised the price of pistol "toting" from $50 to $100, imposing the last named fine upon four white men.

BAIL FOR STEVE ADAMS.

Court Fixes Bond of the Notorious Prisoner at $20,000.

Rathdrum, Idaho, November 25.—Steve Adams, in whose trial for the murder of Fred Tyler, the jury reported a disagreement, was today admitted to bail. Bail was fixed at $20,000. Attorney Darrow, for the defense, announced the bond will be provided within a few days. It is expected that as soon as Adams is relaased on this bond he will be rearrested on a warrant charging him with the murder of Arthur Collins, at Telluride, Colo., in 1902.

Attorneys Darrow and Hawley leave at once for Boise to attend the Pettibone case.

MACON MAN ASKS FOR REPORT ON WRECK

Deputy Marshal Johnson Sues Southern for Injuries in Wreck That Killed Samuel Spencer.

Macon, Ga., November 25.—(Special.) The wrecking of the Southern railway train in which Samuel Spencer was killed at Sawyers, Va., just one year ago to the day, was a matter before the United States court in an application made to Judge Emory Speer today to require the company to bring into court the reports of employees as to causes of the disaster.

The matter came through the damage suit of United States Deputy Marshal Johnson, who was injured in the wreck. When the application was presented, attorneys representing the railway company objected, but finally submitted and said the reports would be on hand when the case comes up. They claimed that the matter was not admissible evidence, however. This damage suit is to prove a means of bringing a full account of the Spencer wreck into the court far away from the scene where the railway president lost his life.

FIREMAN KILLED AND FLAGMAN HURT IN WRECK

Two Engines Collided at Woodlawn, Near Birmingham, One Meeting Death.

Birmingham, Ala., November 25.—Benjamin Whorley, a fireman on the Southern railway, is dead and John Renneussau, a flagman on the same road, is badly injured as the result of a collision between two engines in the Woodlawn yards this morning.

One of the engines was standing still, it is stated, and both Whorley and Renneussau were on it. Another engine was coming up the same track and it was impossible for the engineer in charge to see the one standing still until too late.

EXPENSES OF MEETING PAID BY 39 ATLANTANS

The success of the annual mass meeting of the charities association, at which Jane Addams delivered her impressive speech on "Newer Ideals in Philanthropy," was largely due to the following gentlemen, who contributed $5 each, especially for the purpose of defraying the expenses of this meeting. Most of these gentlemen, in inclosing their check to the finance committee, expressed the heartiest approval of the work of the society, and stated that it was a pleasure to them to aid toward the expenses of the meeting.

The finance committee of the association has done hard work in behalf of the society, and the response which it received to this special appeal was most gratifying and encouraging.

The list of contributors to defray the expenses of the mass meeting, each of whom gave $5, follows:

Forrest Adair, M. F. Amorous, T. J. Avery, L. H. Beck, B. M. Blount, Asa G. Candler, W. E. Chapin, C. A. Conklin, W. T. Gentry, John W. Grant, Frank Hawkins, Dr. T. P. Hinman, Dr. F. H. "LOVE NEIGHBOR AS THYSELF"

On That Text Bryan Speaks to the Y. M. C. A. Convention.

Washington, D. C., November 25.—William J. Bryan and Robert E. Speer, of New York, were the principal speakers at Convention hall tonight at the concluding session of the international convention of Young Men's Christian Association of North America, which has been in session for four days.

Mr. Bryan spoke on "Christ in the Life of Men," and Mr. Speer on "The Association a Bond of International Fellowship." Mr. Bryan declared that the Biblical injunction, "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself," is a platform more fundamental than that presented by any political platform, and that there is no question this platform could not solve.

Invitations were extended by San Francisco, Los Angeles, Denver, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Asbury Park, Albany, Detroit, for holding the next convention in 1910. The matter was referred to the international committee for decision.

Chicago is still reforming some of the reformers.

And now we hear the plumber piping cheerfully.

Wintry storms promise panics, but we'll weather 'em.

And now they are trying to reform New Orleans. Get ready for the millennium!

Judged by the prices, the Thanksgiving and Christmas turkeys are still roosting high.

Miles and miles of sunshine in the south, while in Boston the snow is up to the hub.

A deluge of holiday literature, and some of the books make beautiful parlor ornaments.

Boston balloonists will brave the wintry weather. Boston theorists are always in the air.

We call it "this old country," but it's really a young one, and just getting on its mettle.

Take the world as you find it; and show your clearing house certificate, and pass on!

Wall street feels better, and the country shakes hands and says: "Don't do it again!"

You may well call it "the literary business." That's just the way the publishers look at it.

The kaiser is in England for his health, which is naturally clouded in the London fog season.

Of course, they are saying that in these hard times it's only the plumber who can raise the price.

More teachers for the Philippines. But there "the young idea" knows how to shoot pretty well.

So many southern states are practising the new song, "Where Is My Wandering Bar Tonight?"

Perhaps these Americans who are investing in ghostly English castles are used to skeletons in their closets.

"Senator Watterson" sounds good. Besides, he will be right where he can get 'em all "back to the constitution."

Commander Peary seems to think the pole will wait till he comes. But his lectures on the same didn't cut much ice.

More wild theories about the stars, when we're making such desperate efforts to pull through this panicky old world!

Just when Editor Watterson announced that he was "out of politics" a conspiracy was formed to make a senator of him.

If it be true that when you feed a man well he forgets his religion, there's no danger of that at the present prices of food.

That "genius is hard work" is as true as gospel. So, just watch the genius of this country pull her through her troubles.

There is a new song, entitled "The Colonels Take Their Toddies in Kentucky." But it doesn't say how long they'll take 'em.

We Admonish Bill Regarding "Ree-Form."

Bill Watts, of "Muley Headed Cow Deestrick," has political aspirations. He wants to be bailiff of his bailiwick.

Don't know BILL! Read his card published elsewhere. You'll know him then and like him. For Bill's got a homespun wit and a shrewd penetration that mark him as a genius of the soil, and a canny student of current events.

But Bill's in trouble at this writing. He's out after a platform on which he can ride, exultantly, into office.

He has samples of both the "panick" and the "ree-form" brands. But recent and contemporaneous history in Georgia, Bill says, has made him leary of both.

Bill misdoubts him whether "ree-form" reforms; he's anxious about a missing $4,000,000. He isn't sure that either one of his platforms would appeal to the good folk of "Muley Headed Cow Deestrick," and, in his bewilderment, he reaches out with trusting confidence for advice.

Well, Bill, we can only talk on general principles and let you draw your own "dee-ductions."

You know, Bill, speaking of "ree-form," that "once upon a time," as they say in fairy stories (by the way, Bill, do you believe in "ree-form" fairies?) the democratic administrations of Georgia were maligned from Dog Run to Possum Trot.

What for? Now, SAY, Bill! Because they had let the wicked "copperations" run roughshod, for twenty-five years, over the pocketbooks and the rights of the people of Georgia. These democratic administrations were pilloried as the pals of the "copperations." They had shared the loot. They were particeps criminis. SURE, Bill, you remember THAT!

Don't you remember, too, Bill, that for the last ten of these vile twenty-five years, Georgia had made more progress toward the regulation of the "copperations" than any other state in the union? That the "copperations" were made to cough up more benefits for the people, at less prices, than at any time in the history of either?

That, each year, a further step was taken in making the "copperations" bear their share of taxation, their portion of the expense of government, to the infinite lightening of the load on the taxpayers' shoulders?

Now, Bill, HONOR BRIGHT! Isn't that so?

You remember, too, Bill, that during these ten years aforesaid the tax rate had been kept marvelously low, considering the expanding wealth of the state and the increasing expense of its administration. The tax rate under the last "robber" administration, Bill, was 4.80 mills on the dollar.

The first "blessing" of "ree-form," Bill, was the hiking of the rate to the constitutional limitation, five mills on the dollar.

You know now, Bill, just what you got under "ree-form" and its opposite. Maybe you're realizing, as you reach out for some of that four million to help you pay the higher taxes, that blessings look their very brightest as they're doing the skidoo stunt!

Tough luck, old boy, isn't it, that "ree-form" isn't having as much luck with the "copperations" in the line of making them toe the mark, as the former "pals" of them?

But really, Bill, this headachy experience of "ree-form" needn't scare you off THAT particular platform.

Want to be bailiff bad enough, Bill?

Don't care how you get there?

Willing to pay ANY price?

Oh, well, then, just promise 'em anything!

Promise 'em the rainbow in the sky. They'll believe you can give it to 'em, if you try hard enough.

Promise 'em the millennium!

Damn, vilify, abuse, every lop-eared hound of a bailiff who's held the office in the recollection of the voter, regardless of what he may have accomplished, for the "deestrick!"

Reckoning day? What do YOU care, Bill? You'll have the office then, and they'll have the bag to hold.

But, say, Bill! Have your excuse ready, when that reckoning day comes. Make it good and smooth and plausible.

For, speaking of "ree-forms" and "panicks"—"ree-form" is the most "panicky" thing going, when the people ask for a show down!

Some of the paragraphers make merry over the clearing house certificates. However it is no joke they are all glad to get them.

It seems there is no third term man in the white house. They're all trying to be heard for their much speaking on the outside.

New stories of smoke on the moon. But the troubles of this old world are enough to make even the moon smoke.

"Old Virginia" has a "pallbearers' union." Certainly a grave situation.

Mr. Baxter's Optimistic Diagnosis.

A strong and interesting addition to the volume of expert discussion regarding the financial situation is the interview with Mr. Nathaniel Baxter, of Nashville, Tenn., which The Constitution publishes elsewhere today.

His diagnosis assumes particular value because of his rare opportunity for intimate familiarity with every phase of the industrial and financial conditions of the country.

Prominently identified with the most prominent banking institutions of Nashville, and the chief executive of one of the country's largest industrial corporations during the panic of 1893, he is amply qualified to speak with authority on the intimate corelation between finance and every branch of commerce. His keen analysis of the underlying causes for existing conditions, and his terse summary of the previous financial disturbances in this country, mark him as a student of rare thoroughness and intelligence.

His diagnosis is, in the main, an optimistic one. He agrees with other experts that the industrial and financial conditions of the country are fundamentally sound, and he forecasts an early ending of the present stringency, with no general shattering of prices or values.

The Constitution has given space to Mr. Baxter and other financiers of note, to the end that its readers may thoroughly familiarize themselves with the varied elements of the situation, as viewed from the differing angles of men of astuteness and patriotism. The need of a remedy is obvious. The only question is that of procedure.

It is increasingly evident, also, that it should be applied conservatively, deliberately, after a full and free discussion of ways and means by authorities who each bring wisdom and experience to their counsels. We have been shown, often and convincingly, that there is absolutely no ground for alarm or misgiving.

Confidence and cooperation assured, we can work, unhampered, toward a reasonable and permanent solution.

The President and Governor Hughes.

Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff, of the New York republican state committee, has not paid his promised visit to the white house and will not do so for the present.

This announcement in the news dispatches appears innocent enough on the surface, but the significance of the deferred visit will probably prove of interest to the whole country. It might seem the most reasonable thing imaginable for the republican chairman from the president's own state to drop in at the white house and discuss the state of the republic. Naturally the talk might also drift to a discussion of the state of republican sentiment in New York and particularly the feeling of the voters toward the president and Governor Hughes.

The practical certainty that this program would be followed out if the conference occurred was responsible for it being called off. The announced reason was that James W. Wadsworth, jr., speaker of the New York assembly, was prevented from accompanying Chairman Woodruff. The real secret probably was that the president was displeased at the wide publicity given to the conference and foresaw the speculation that would follow a white house gathering attended by New York officials who were unfriendly to Governor Hughes and his reforms during the last legislative session.

Governor Hughes has held steadfastly aloof from the president's chariot. He has pursued his own course in his own way. While following out a reform program, he has studiedly avoided being associated with that of the president.

The governor has the reputation of being an independent thinker and a calm, thoughtful, immovable reformer. He cares little for the spectacular in the reform business.

That an official of his ability and prominence should be continually mentioned in connection with the presidency was inevitable. In the present state of republican politics the trend seems to be setting toward President Roosevelt and Governor Hughes. The former is being considered by increasing numbers as the most available republican for the nomination next year, while the opponents of the president are turning toward Hughes.

For the president to receive Governor Hughes' enemies would give further color to the belief that he is attempting to control New York politics for his own purposes. That the president even remotely considers the advisability of having the New York delegation instructed to support his own nomination has not appeared—as yet.

The fact of particular interest to democrats in this connection is that President Roosevelt is evidently awaiting some definite acknowledgment or admission from Mr. Bryan that he will consent to head the democratic fight next year. That announcement is looked for at the approaching democratic dinner in Washington. Probably a further cause of delay is the absence of Secretary Taft.

All signs go to show that republican sentiment is crystallizing around Roosevelt and Hughes, and that if Bryan runs he will have as an opponent the president himself.

One afternoon Aunt Sue was explaining the meaning of various words to her young nephew. "Now, an heirloom, my dear, means something that has been handed down from father to son," she said. "Well," replied the boy thoughtfully, "that's a queer name for my pants."—Chase (Kan.) Register.

Women in Elizabeth's Time.

Concerning the women of the court of Queen Elizabeth a writer of that time remarked, "They so shun and avoid idleness, some of them exercising their fingers with the needle, some in continual reading, either of the Holy Scriptures or histories of their own or foreign nations about us, and divers in writing volumes of their own or translating of other men's into our English and Latin tongue." Also, "many of the eldest sort are skillful in surgery, and there is in manner none of them but when they be at home can help to supply the ordinary want of the kitchen with a number of delicate dishes of their own devising."—London Saturday Review.

HIGH PRICES AND THE PANIC

Unusual View of the Situation Is Taken by Nathaniel Baxter—Readjustment of Values Is Taking Place.

(From The Nashville American.)

Of more than passing interest are the views entertained by Nathaniel Baxter, of Nashville, upon the financial situation. His views, as outlined to a member of The American's staff Thursday, are given below, and one can not peruse them without realizing that they are the result of calm and dispassionate study of the many factors which contribute, or have contributed, to bring about the present financial flurry. And, too, one who weighs carefully the statements of Mr. Baxter is almost certain to agree with him in his conclusions. He believes that after the January settlements are accomplished, there will be a plethora of available money.

Mr. Baxter was for nearly a decade a Nashville bank president, having been first president of the Mechanics' National bank, and then the First National. He then became president of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, the largest southern industrial corporation. He remained in the presidency of this corporation for fourteen years, and was at the helm during the panic of 1893.

As a banker he was compelled to study and master the intricacies of finance, and the effect produced by the slightest occurrence. As president of the Tennessee company he was required to become thoroughly familiar with the various effects produced upon the financial world by happenings in the industrial world, and he was brought into almost daily touch with the situation. He probably realizes, as do few men, how interwoven are the fields of industry and finance, and his present views are therefore of great interest and value.

Mr. Baxter was found at his residence Thursday afternoon, and the promptness and detail with which he answered the first question showed that he was in close touch with the situation. The first question was necessarily a rather general one. The American representative saying:

"Mr. Baxter, I would like to ask that you give your views upon the financial situation and outlook—the cause of the present flurry, its probable duration, and its seriousness, as you see them."

"There is a cause for every financial panic, though not necessarily justified," said Mr. Baxter. "Generally, however, the cause is a justification. If the cause is known and justified, then an opinion can be formed as to the remedies applicable, and if the remedies are at hand and can be applied by appropriate legislation or otherwise, an idea may be formed as to the probable effect and duration. We are just now turning what appears to be the crucial period of a panic for which I have seen no satisfactory statement as to the cause. The cause will be better understood when we are farther from it and after all excitement has subsided and general conditions have again become normal.

"The present panic, it occurs to me, is distinctly different, or, rather, prevailing conditions are utterly unlike those preceding former panics in this country, and for this reason makes the inquiry into the causes producing it of unusual interest. The important or disastrous panics of our country were those of 1837, 1873 and 1893. We had also the panics of 1856, 1861 and 1884. The three last named were of short duration and of little consequence as compared with the three first. That of 1861 was caused by the severance of relation between the two sections of the country, the north and the south, and the preparations made for war on a large scale and organization of tremendous armies and the resorts by both governments to an irredeemable currency to provide equipment and maintenance for the armies, draining gold and silver out of circulation by the creation of a large and irredeemable currency. That of 1856 by the failure of the free banking system, based on a false principle, which resulted in the loss of the circulation of the country, which consisted largely of the notes of these banks, which, of course, upon the failure of the banks, immediately became of no value, thus creating a contraction of the circulating medium. The panic of 1884 was produced by dishonest and fraudulent management of banks, resulting in the almost simultaneous failure of several large banks and financial institutions, including among other the Metropolitan National bank, Fish & Hatch and Grant & Ward, all of New York city. It was of short duration, and was without lasting effect.

"The panic of 1837 was produced by the celebrated circular letter of General, the then President, Andrew Jackson, instructing the collectors and land agents of the United States government, requiring them to receive only gold or silver money in payment of dues to the government and in the payment for government lands. The currency of the country consisted at the time almost exclusively of the notes of 'wild cat' banks, the notes of these banks being irredeemable. It resulted in general failure and the notes of these banks, which constituted the currency of the country, with scarcely an exception, became worthless, thus leaving the country without currency or a circulating medium, save indeed the small amount of specie then in the country; the contraction thus resulting was perhaps the severest the country has known and the results of this panic the most enduring and disastrous.

"The panic of 1873 was caused by the contraction of the currency by retiring greenbacks in the effort of the government to return to specie payment after the war. In the prosecution of the war the government had found it necessary to issue and circulate an enormous quantity of this irredeemable paper which was greatly depreciated by reason of its immense volume and its quality. This, in order to resume specie payment, required to be retired or reduced to a small quantity in circulation; the contraction of this currency produced the panic of 1873.

"The panic of 1893 was caused by Mr. Cleveland's effort to maintain the government on a gold basis by the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver law. Mr. Cleveland believed, and subsequent events have abundantly proven the correctness of his views, that the effect of the Sherman law, if the purchasing clause was not repealed, would be, in view of the law of production, to drain gold out of circulation, and thus produce an enormous contraction. And this occurred practically before he was able to secure from congress the passage of the bill repealing it.

"It will be seen, therefore, that the panics from which we have suffered have been produced by contraction of the currency from one cause or another, or to express it differently, by diminishing or reducing the circulation and thus making the money, by reason of its scarcity, more valuable, or the commodities into which it was interchangeable less valuable. In other words, it is with money like other commodities, and the same principles and rules that obtain in the regulation of the prices of other commodities apply with equal force in regulating the balance of money.

"The well known laws of supply and demand are applicable and effective in determining the value of money. The value of money, therefore, varies, and when it is plentiful, it is said to be cheap, and the commodities are said to be dear; or the reverse—when it is scarce and high, commodities are said to be cheap. It will be seen therefore that the fruitful source of panics in this country has been the contraction of the circulation; in fact, it may be said with truth that contraction of the currency has caused all previous financial disturbances which might properly be called panics in the United States.

"Not so, however, with the present panic. Its coming was not heralded by any contraction of the currency, either premeditated or accidental, but it makes its appearance at a time when he currency of the country is at the highest point ever known before; nor is there any apprehension anywhere that it is to be reduced. There is no political party advocating or suggesting the propriety of such an effort, and not only is it the largest in amount but it is also the soundest. There is no uneasiness on the part of any one in this or any other country as to the soundness or value of this immense volume of currency. Every dollar of it is as good as gold, and all of it circulates on a parity with gold; nor has there been nor is there now any apprehension that we may not continue to hold our circulation to the present large volume. But it is confidently believed by all who have thought upon the subject that it will continue to increase as it has been doing so rapidly in the output of our gold and silver mines (all of which we have kept at home for the last ten years, and in the meantime acquired almost $100,000,000 mined by other nations, together with exports of our enormous manufactures, wheat, corn and cotton, our circulation has not and will not contract, but has been and will continue to increase.

"Then, you see, with conditions exactly the reverse of these at the commencement of other panics, this one occurs. In evidence of this I refer you to the statement of circulation issued by the treasury department November 1, 1907. From this it will be seen that the money in circulation in this country on January 1, 1879, was $816,266,721, and that the amount in circulation November 1, 1907, is $2,876,386,696, which, added to that held in the treasury as assets of the government, makes a total of the general stock of money in the United States on the first of the current month $3,148,776,911, a circulation per capita on the first of this month of $33.23, or $10 per capita greater than in November, 1893. It is obvious, therefore, that this panic has not been created as the previous panics, by a contraction of the currency.

"The conditions rather indicate that it has been caused by the expansion of the currency, by the very great increase in the amount of money in circulation. Is this possible, you ask? I think so, for the effect of the immense increase in the circulation of money has been to make money cheaper. Under the influence of the law of supply and demand its greater abundance has made it cheaper, and as a result all staple commodities, including labor, which is the only true standard for the measurement of values, are dearer—money itself in reality being a commodity. As evidence of this I call your attention to the fact that the increase in the market values of commodities is not confined to any particular commodity, but all have been affected similarly and relatively—wheat, corn, cotton, iron, steel, mules, beef, pork, etc. We have not been afflicted by war or pestilence nor by famine, fire or flood, but the reverse is true; at peace with the world and blessed for years with abundant crops, which have been marketed at the best prices.

"Then what causes this panic?

"It is my opinion the fact that the abundance of money has made it cheaper, and labor and commodities dearer, and that a readjustment of relative values of capital, labor and commodities is taking place; or, in other words, boiled down to its last analysis, it is a contest between capital and labor, forced by the increase in circulation and the resultant high price of commodities; or, you may say, the higher cost of living.

"The laborer says, in effect: 'True, I did work for a dollar a day, and was contented. At that time, however, wheat was 50 cents per bushel, but now it is one dollar per bushel, and other commodities relatively high. It requires, therefore, twice as much money to live, and I must have two dollars for every day's work to live as well as I did when I got only one dollar.'

"But the capitalist, replying, says: 'I took the bonds of the railroad that employed you at $1 per day on a basis of 3 or 3 1-2 per cent, payable in gold and due in fifty years; and at that time I could buy wheat at 50 cents per bushel and other commodities relatively cheap. But my income is fixed. I can only draw for the life of my bonds, thirty, forty or fifty years, as the case may be, 3 or 3 1-2 per cent of interest. The value of fixed incomes arising from securities became greatly impaired, and the same demand no longer exists. Upon the contrary, people who a few years ago were contented with their investments became dissatisfied and now prefer selling those they have to purchasing others of like character.

"And the railroads, taxed to their utmost capacity to handle satisfactorily the enormously increased traffic forced upon them by the stimulated activities of general business, finding their operating expenses, by reason of higher prices of labor and commodities, have so increased that the business is no longer relatively nearly so profitable, and the balance of business so much increased, determine to increase their equipment, double their tracks and make other and additional improvements to enable them to handle their business more economically, and to this end go into the market asking for the capital for these improvements, but are turned down by the capitalists declining to take the low rate of interest offered, and this, not because of lack of security, but because of the diminished purchasing power of the income. And driven to make some financial shift, they flood the money market with short-time notes bearing 6 and 7 per cent interest and sell them for what they will bring.

"If then it proves to be in reality as it appears to be that the greatly increased circulation has produced a want of harmony between the price of labor and commodities, on the one hand, and capital on the other, and that panic is an effort at readjustment of the values of securities and commodities, what will occur and is to be expected? Which will prevail in this conflict? Will the price of commodities decline and the price of securities go up, or the reverse take place?

"In the first shock of the conflict it would appear that commodities had achieved an advantage, for the battlefield has been in the territory of the securities, Wall street, and commodities have declined but little in the last twelve months in comparison with the decline which has taken place in Wall street. Has the decline in securities been greater than is required to bring about the proper adjustment of values?

"Looking back over a year it has been drastic, and it would appear that it had been, and that really there should be some recovery. Now, with the price of commodities, what will occur? I don't think they will decline any, if much, more, for the reason that the cause of the existence of these high prices for commodities still exists, and will continue and increase; that is the tremendous volume of currency circulating. I know of no way to bring down these prices except by a contraction of this circulation, which will not occur. Upon the contrary, it will continue to increase.

"There has been no destruction of property, no contraction of the currency, and the panic will in all probability be of short duration, and when the banking situation is normal again the probabilities that in a short time after money will be present all over the country in large volume."

Achievements of "Reform."

Editor Constitution: It is well enough to keep the records straight as we go.

At last we have a statement as to something "the reform" movement has accomplished. While still dodging that $4,000,000 proposition—the money that was to be given back to the people from reductions in freight rates—The Atlanta Journal, as official spokesman of "reform," says today:

Whatever might be the natural disposition of Mr. Harriman, he is powerless to increase the stocks and bonds of the Central without the consent of the state railroad commission.

Here we have, therefore, two splendid results of the campaign—the overthrow of the Southern's ownership of the Central, and the prevention of speculative exploitation of the latter property.

These two achievements alone should be sufficient to place the administration and the campaign of education conducted last year high in the esteem of the people and enlist the continued support of the people of Georgia who have the best interests of the state at heart.

Let's anayize the facts:

Where and when was anything said during the campaign by the "reform" candidate advocating the divorce of the Central and the Southern?

On the other hand, was this issue not made by other candidates who, in the newspapers and on the stump, actively criticized the "reform" candidate for having delivered a legal opinion in connection with the attorneys of the Southern railroad, specifically setting forth his judgment as a lawyer that the Southern railroad had a right to hold the ocmpeting lines it had obtained?

The case of the Dunlap Hardware Company, of Macon, seeking to break up one of these sales was brought to the attention of the voters, and it was shown that Mr. Smith, as a lawyer, had filed a brief in the United States courts arguing in behalf of the validity of the sale attacked by the Dunlap company, on the ground that the state constitution was being violated.

In the name of Heaven, therefore, how can this now be considered as a "reform" issue?

In the next place, it is noted that as one of the achievements of "reform" that if Mr. Harriman has bought the Central he cannot now indulge in any "speculative exploitation" with it—thanks to "reform."

And yet throughout the campaign the whole argument was that the Central was already so overwhelmingly overcapitalized that it was forced to maintain extortionate freight rates to carry its capitalization. If it was so overwhelmingly over-capitalized then—and if it is now paying no divdends at all on certain of its securities—how would it be possible for Mr. Harriman to again over-capitalize a company that is already so much over-capitalized as to be made a subject for campaign discussion?

It is amusing to talk about Mr. Harriman, or anybody else, recapitalizing the Central railroad after it has run the gamut of Wall street, being capitalized up to the hilt, and selling for less than $4,000,000 while capitalized on a basis of $50,000,000.

And these are the achievements of "reform" today.

"Bring in another horse!"

Use of Fenders on Cars.

Editor Constitution: The deplorable accident on Whitehall street Sunday afternoon emphasizes the need of some safety device attached to our street cars to protect life.

Fenders of practical value are in use in other cities. Why not in Atlanta?

It seems to me a safety device would be the means of saving thousands of dollars to the street railway company, as well as the lives of citizens.

HE USED HIS PISTOL TO SNUFF OUT LIGHT

"We are not living in a wild west border town, and Atlanta is no Leadville of the south," remarked Recorder Broyles to Jake Kranz in the police court yesterday morning.

Kranz had been shooting out lights with his pistol in the tenderloin district while on a razzee Saturday night. He had put up a cash bond of $100.75, and he came into court late, and after witnesses had told how he had snuffed out a light with his pistol, which he had had concealed in his hip pocket.

Kranz may have thought when he came in late that he would get back part of the $100.75, but he made a miscue. The recorder called him up, told him that he ought to have been in court on time, and fined him the full amount of the cash bond, $100.75.

And that was not all the recorder did for Jake, for he held him in a $200 bond for carrying a concealed pistol, and came very near fining him for contempt of court.

Kranz was placed in the waiting room until he could make bond, and later was ordered transferred to the Tower, where he soon gave the necessary bail. He took the situation good-naturedly, and did not deny the charge against him.

When he snuffed out the light in a house, the inmates became panic-stricken, and called for the police. It seems that he fired only one time, and a bull's eye the first crack.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ELECTS OFFICERS TODAY

At a meeting of the chamber of commerce, to be held today at noon, the officers for the ensuing years will be elected. The meeting is scheduled to last from 12 o'clock noon until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, but in view of the fact that the nominating committee sent in its report some time ago it will take but a comparatively short time to hold the actual election.

The officers nominated for next year are:

Asa G. Candler for president.

David Woodward for first vice president.

Sam Carter, John E. Murphy and H. A. Maier for directors.

The Present Officers.

The present officers, whose terms expire, are: President, J. Wylie Pope; vice president, David Woodward, and Harry L. Schlesinger, Forrest Adair and L. A. Ransom, directors.

The officers and directors who hold over for the next year are: F. J. Paxon, second vice president; R. L. Foreman, third vice president, and Charles E. Cavarly, E. C. Calloway and W. S. Duncan, directors.

The election will be by ballot, and members of the chamber of commerce may deposit their votes at any time between 12 o'clock and 5 o'clock.

It is probable that the exchange feature of the chamber of commerce will be taken up in the next few days. Only about half of the amount necessary to support the exchange for the next year has been raised. However, it is thought the requisite amount will be forthcoming.

JUDGE HART IS STUDYING THE BACK TAX DECISION

Whether it is a judicial or legislative point upon which the "back tax case" hangs suspended by the United States supreme court decision, recently handed down and held to be adverse to the interest of the state, will probably be decided by the attorney general within the next few days.

A complete copy of this famous decision, written by Mr. Justice Day, was received by Attorney General Hart, who spent the afternoon perusing it and conferring with Comptroller General Wright, against whom the injunction was secured.

Judge Hart will announce his decision on the matter shortly.

According to those who have read the decision it is practically as first printed in The Constitution.

One $800,000 in back taxes is still tied-up, and upon the construction of the decision will depend what mode must be adopted to unravel the legal complications.

It seems that the supreme court of the United States has held the taxes were sought without due process of law.

When the case was before Judge Pendleton, in the superior court of Atlanta, the roads made the claim that they had not been given a hearing on the subject of these taxes.

Judge Pendleton held that the law did not give them this right, but Judge Hart agreed that a hearing should be had then and there, and such was held, at which it was demonstrated that the taxes asked were not excessive.

When this case went to the supreme court of Georgia that higher court confirmed the decision of Judge Pendleton, but held that inasmuch as the roads had not returned the property for taxation they were defaulters, and had not the right to the hearing.

When the supreme court of the United States heard the case that court held that the roads did have a right for a hearing, but turned the state down because the supreme court denied the right of the lower court to grant a hearing on this subject.

The decision is deeply involved, and the outcome will be awaited with interest.

OWNER OF AUTO IS NOT LIABLE

When Car Is in Hands of Others Without His Consent.

In a decision written out by Justice Powell, of the court of appeals, and handed down yesterday morning it is held that the owners of an automobile cannot be held liable for the damage which occurs from that machine when in the hands of persons old enough to be discreet and responsible in the eyes of the law, when the machine is out of the possession of the owners without their knowledge or consent.

This point was brought out in the decision which affirms that of the lower court in the case of Lewis v. Martin Amorous, John F. Toole and Edward Inman.

It is recalled that, while driving the car owned by Martin Amorous, and sent to the garage of John Toole and Edward Inman for repairs, without the knowledge or consent of any of the three, Percy Pybus, the chauffeur, who took the car out for a spin, ran down and killed Branch Lewis, Jr., on the 25th of September, 1905.

Pybus was tried, convicted of involuntary manslaughter and punished for his connection with the killing.

Suit was brought against the owner of the car and the owners of the garage from whom the machine was taken, to hold them liable, too, and this decision holds that they are not.

Bench Show Will Be One of the Interesting Features.

Amid a clatter and clucking, barking and squawking; chattering and cheeping the annual xhibit of poultry, pigeons and pet stock by the Georgia Poultry Association, will be opened in Hastings' warehouse, No. 16 West Mitchell street, at 8 o'clock this morning. It will remain open through Saturday evening with new classes being judged every day.

Yesterday saw every express train which rolled into Atlanta with a car filled with entries to this show. The floor space of this warehouse, which is the largest in Atlanta, is taxed to its fullest capacity, and more space is needed.

Secretary George Wade was busy all day, and it was not until 10 o'clock last night that he had placed all the birds on hand in their cages and had arranged the cages according to classes. Over 2,000 birds were placed before 6 o'clock, and more will arrive.

There are fine chickens, fine ducks, fine guineas, fine turkeys and fine pigeons from all sections of the city, state and south.

It is doubtful if any poultry show ever had as many individual exhibitors or as many classes are are to be seen at this show. The former exhibitions have given a stimulus for this work, and Georgia is now the home of some of the most famous show birds in the country.

In addition to the pigeons and poultry the bench show, which is to be held coincident with this show, will prove one of the most interesting exhibits ever gotten together. There are dogs of all degrees and sizes grouped in the kennel department, and the ntry list does not close until tonight.

President W. V. Zimmer, of the Kimballville Lofts, announces that the children from the orphanages, when accompanied by the matron, today or Wednesday, will be admitted free to the show.

Oklahoma College Is Burned.

Guthrie, Okla., November 25.—Fire destroyed the main building of the State Agricultural and Normal university at Langston last night. The loss is said to be $32,000; with insurance of $32,000. Langston is inhabited solely by negroes. The university was established there ten years ago. Nearly 500 students are enrolled. It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin, resulting from

A JEALOUS OLD MAN; A CHOKER OF HORSES AND A PHONE THREAT

An aged husband, full of jealousy and with a most remarkable matrimonial experience; a Syrian who choked a horse, and a negro who used a telephone to collect a debt, made a trio of interesting stories at Judge Briles' Monday matinee.

Matt J. Hendrix, an old peddler who came from Gwinnett county, was arraigned for trying to kill G. W. Miller, another old man, with an ax in a kitchen in the rear of a residence on Luckie street. Hendrix's wife was in court, and she was also very aged, and not at all pretty.

Miller stated that he called at the kitchen to see Annie Hendrix, and Matt dropped in and made things lively with an ax.

Annie said that she had separated from her husband, whom she married last March, three months after her husband died. She claimed that old man Hendrix was unreasonably jealous.

Hendrix said he was going to tell the "God's truth about himself, if he got hanged for it."

"I married Annie," he said, "last spring. My first wife died and my second one is divorced because I cut her throat and served twelve months for it. I told this fellow (Miller) to quit calling on my third wife, and when I found him with her Saturday night I just made up my mind to kill him with an ax. I sure was going to kill him if he hadn't run."

The recorder decided that the whole push ought to be punished, and he fined them $15.75 each, or thirty days in the stockade.

Charged With Horse Choking.

B. P. Miller, a Syrian, was arraigned on the novel charge of choking a horse.

Hamp Lambert was arraigned for "pasting" the Syrian one for choking the horse.

Miller admitted choking the horse, but said that he did so to see if the horse was winded.

A witness swore that the horse was so badly choked that he wheezed and sneezed for half an hour afterwards.

Lambert said that after Miller had choked the horse he called him a liar, and that called for a blow.

Miller said:

"Me shoke de hoss tu ze eef he vinded."

Recorder Broyles told the Syrian that he had no business choking horses, and if he ever did it again the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals would get hold of him. He fined Miller $5.75 and dismissed the case against Lambert.

A Telephonic Threat.

Asbury Dickson is a Darktown carpenter, and he started a piece of work for another Darktown citizen and failed to complete it. Then he wanted pay from Ben Jenkins, the man for whom the work was done, but Jenkins refused to "come across."

Asbury was arraigned in the police court yesterday morning on complaint of Jenkins, who swore that Asbury had threatened to burn down his store at 186 Maple street if a payment for the carpenter work was not made. This threat was made twice, both times over the telephone.

Asbury swore that he did not do the telephoning, and, as Jenkins could not swear positively that it was Asbury's voice he heard, the recorder dismissed the case.

"Now, you just stop making such threats over the 'phone," the recorder told Asbury. "There is not enough evidence here to convict you, but I believe you did it."

The police say that negroes have been using the telephone a great deal of late with which to do their quarreling, with the idea that the law cannot convict a person who uses a 'phone for such a purpose.

WALKER INMAN LAID TO REST

Services Were Conducted by Rev. Lingle and Rev. R. O. Flinn.

The funeral of Walker Inman, which was held at the residence of the family yesterday morning, was largely attended by the relatives and friends of the family.

The services were remarked for their beautiful simplicity. They were conducted by Rev. W. L. Lingle, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Inman was one of the leading members. Mr. Lingle was assisted by Rev. Orme Flinn.

All of the available room in the spacious residence was filled with friends, who had come to witness the last sad rites of love and respect. The casket was covered by beautiful flowers.

Members of the family acted as pallbearers. They were: John A. Hynds, Inman Gray, Richard Gray, Henry D Hynds, Frank M. Inman, Henry A. Inman, Thomas M. Brumby, Jr., and Captain Earle d'Arcy Pearce.

The escort which accompanied the body to the grave was composed of the officials and members of the First Presbyterian church.

The body was interred at Oakland.

NO EXEMPTION LOST BY SPECIFIC WAIVERS

It has been decided by the court of appeals that specific waivers for garnishment proceedings in the cases of journeymen mechanics and day laborers are not good.

This case has never been decided by the supreme court of Georgia, but one of its justices, Judge J. H. Lumpkin, while presiding over the superior court of Atlanta, made a decision of this character, which has been embraced in the decision handed down yesterday by the court of appeals and written out by Justice Powell.

The case was brought to the court of appeals in the suit of the Traders' Investment Company v. the Macon Railway and Light Company.

In it a day laborer had specifically named the waiver which would allow in the matter of salary.

It was thought that this would evade the law, which holds that the wages of a day laborer, journeymen and mechanics are exempt from garnishment.

After reviewing the case thoroughly Justice Powell affirms the decision of the lower court, and holds that specific waivers do not hold, and that the exemption from garnishment continues to stand as before.

WHAT WAS IT
The Woman Feared?

What a comfort to find it is not "the awful thing" feared but only chronic indigestion, which proper food can relieve.

A woman in Ohio says:

"I was troubled for years with indigestion and chronic constipation. At times I would have such a gnawing in my stomach that I actually feared I had a—I dislike to write or even think of what I feared.

"Seeing an account of Grape-Nuts, I decided to try it. After a short time I was satisfied the trouble was not the awful thing I feared, but was still bad enough. However, I was relieved of a bad case of dyspepsia, by changing from improper food to Grape-Nuts.

"Since that time my bowels have been as regular as a clock. I had also noticed before I began to eat Grape-Nuts that I was becoming forgetful of where I put little things about the house, which was very annoying.

"But since the digestive organs have become strong from eating Grape-Nuts, my memory is good and my mind as clear as when I was young, and I am thankful." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," in packages. "There's a Reason."

TAX RECEIVER UNDER HOT FIRE

Montgomery County Grand Jury Asks Removal of Official.

Comptroller General Wright is in receipt of a copy of the grand jury proceedings of Montgomery county for the November term, in which it is recommended that Tax Receiver W. M. Outlaw be removed for incompetency.

That section of the presentments relating to this officials reads as follows:

"We find the tax receiver of this county entirely incompetent to direct the duties of this office, a fact he has freely admitted to this body, and we recommend that the ordinary of this county furnish the comptroller general proofs and demand that he remove this receiver from office as the law directs, according to sections No. 920, volume 1, of the code."

After conferring with Attorney General Hart on the subject, General Wright has written to the ordinary, inquiring whether the official thus gravely accused has had a hearing in which he was allowed to present his side of the case freely and fully.

It is the intention of the comptroller to see that he is tried by due process of law and given every opportunity to defend himself before removal action is taken.

It is charged that a great deal of Montgomery county property is not returned for taxation; that much that has been has not been duly transferred to the records, and that in this way the county stands to lose much in tax collections this fall.

This is the first time in years that such a charge has been made or admitted among the tax officials of the state.

No action will be taken in this case until the matter has been sifted to the bottom.

LITTLE BOY IS HAPPY; HIS FATHER IS FOUND

Howard Cook, the little 6-year-old boy who was found asleep on a Seaboard train Sunday and who was later in the day brought to the city from Athens and given into the custody of the police, is now back with his parents and again happy.

Relatives of the little boy saw the story of his finding in yesterday's Constitution and early in the day called at the barracks for the little fellow. Their claim was quickly substantiated by the joy of the boy at seeing them and he was carried home with them.

According to the story told by them to Probation Officer Gloer the father came to the city from Lawrenceville, but in some manner lost trace of him. The boy was asleep when he was found, having slept through the time of the train's stay in Atlanta.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES CLOSE FOR THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving day will be holiday, as far as the Georgia Technological school and the public schools of Atlanta are concerned. This, of course, is the regular announcement for the year.

The Technological school will not have but one day, as is customary. All classes will resume work on Friday, and continue through the week. In the public schools, so far as is known now, there will be only one day given, all pupils being required to return on Friday.

Ruling Made on Cotton Seed Meal.

Montgomery, Ala., November 25.—(Special.)—The commissioner of agriculture has issued a ruling or interpretation of the cotton seed meal law, in which he holds that it is incumbent upon the manufacturer to stamp upon each sack the amount of plant food contained in that sack.

The law as passed did not state that the amount contained in each sack should be stamped thereon, but left it open whether or not the printed matter should state the amount contained in the ton or in the sack. The law left it open for interpretation by the commissioner, and today he announced his ruling.

WOMAN DUMMY DANCED IN AIR

Crowds Gathered on Street Corners Watching the Unique Sight.

Suspended, seemingly, half-way between the sky and the street, yesterday afternoon, over the eastern section of the city there was a figure of a woman.

It seemed to be dancing in the air with nothing to show why it was the body did not fall to the earth beneath and be dashed into a thousand pieces.

Great crowds gathered at every corner along Whitehall street, the viaduct, and Peachtree street to watch this strange figure in the air. As all such sights seemed to be telegraphed as if by magic to office windows those windows on the eastern side of the Century, the Fourth National bank, the Empire and the Candler buildings began to fly up and the occupants poked their heads out.

And still the figure remained standing in the air. In a little while she seemed to fairly float through the air and swung around towards the Goddess of Liberty, who receives on the dome of the capitol building.

The figure got nearly there and swung away.

Those possessed of keen eyesight soon denoted the cord which held the figure suspended in the air, and saw one end run in an angle towards the earth and another continue into space.

About five hundred feet up and beyond the suspended figure were two giant box kites, capable of lifting twenty-five pounds each. It was to these that the cord was attached which carried the woman's dummy figure high into the air. It was a gruesome sight, and a splendid advertisement for the "Bostock arena" of wild animals, which is closing its final week at Ponce de Leon.

CAPITOL GOSSIP

Commissioner of Agriculture T. G. Hudson, Secretary Foster Williams and Assistant Geologist Turner left last night for Jamestown, where they go to pack up the Georgia exhibits now on display at that place. It will require about ten days for the agricultural and mineral displays of this state, both of which won first prizes of gold medals, to be packed up and made ready for exportation.

The scarcity of labor in the exposition city and the fact that the men who will accompany him are both used to handling the exhibits made it more feasible to take these men to the exposition than to hire labor there. They will return about the middle of December.

Governor to Attend Conference.

Governor Smith has accepted an invitation to attend the deep-waterways convention to be held in Washington on December 4 and 5, and will make the assembled delegates an address upon one of these days. He will urge development for the Savannah, Chattahoochee, Altamaha and Coosa rivers in Georgia, and also the digging of a canal through this state. The meeting is to be held under the name of the national rivers and harbors congress.

Young McLendon Under Knife.

The many friends of Chairman S. G. McLendon, of the railroad commission of Georgia, will sympathize with him over the operation which was performed upon his young son and namesake yesterday morning for appendicitis. The operation was performed at the Presbyterian hospital, and at last accounts the little fellow was doing as well as could be expected. He is a student at the Georgia Military academy, where he was taking a good stand, and is universally popular.

"He Used Capitola So Well"

This refers to the Chef in the big hotel who made rolls no cook could excel—
Mrs. W. H. Emerson, of 175 Ashby street, West End, concluded last week's Capitola Limerick verse with the line—
"HE USED "CAPITOLA" SO WELL,"
and was awarded first prize of $10.00 in gold.

Three Cheers for "Capitola" They Yell!

This was the concluding line which won second prize of $5.00 in gold and was awarded to Mrs. W. B. Senn, 396 Central avenue.
And last week's list of praises for Capitola is a vociferous echo of the sentiments of Mrs. Senn, whose first thought of Capitola in connection with the Limerick verse was a spontaneous outburst.

Three Cheers for "Capitola" They Yell!

This week we have made a new division of the prize money, offering eleven prizes in gold instead of two, as follows: 1st prize, $5.00 in gold, for the best line, and ten prizes of $1.00 each in gold for the ten next best lines. This affords an increased opportunity for contestants to win.
The following is the Capitola Limerick verse for this week:

A young lady whose front name was Joe,
Never lacked for a suitable beau—
Her bread, cake and pies
At the Fair took the Prize.

Now then, all together, everybody (as the "allday singing" master says), get a good start by phoning or sending to your grocer for a sack of Capitola Flour, write a concluding rhyming line to above "Limerick," cut out the word "Capitola" from your Capitola sack and mail or send both to our office, and be in line for a prize.
Completing line is to end with a word rhyming with "beau." Be sure and date your line and send in your answer early, as in case of an accepted prize line having more than one representative, priority of date will determine the award. Contest closes Saturday at noon.

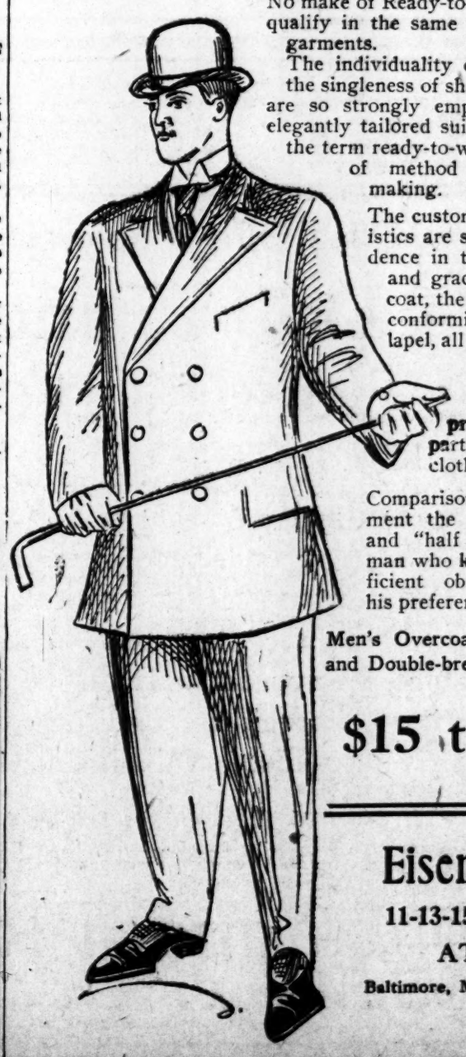
Hand-tailored ready Suits and Overcoats for men, youths, boys and children.

The main floor of the "Big Store," with its magnificent line of Men's Suits and Overcoats, offers abundant evidence in support of our claims for variety and quality.

No make of Ready-to-wear for men can qualify in the same class with "E-B" garments.

The individuality of fashioning and the singleness of shaping and draping are so strongly emphasized in these elegantly tailored suits and coats, that the term ready-to-wear is a definition of method rather than of making.



The custom tailor characteristics are so strongly in evidence in the "classy" mold and graceful drape of the coat, the shapely, "snugly" conforming collar and lapel, all with the dash and spirit of the genius of skillful tailors combines to produce a type of particularly superior clothing.

Comparisons simply augment the claims for them, and "half a glance" of the man who knows style is sufficient observation to win his preference.

Letters of Queen Victoria.

"The book of the century," is the way in which the English critics are referring to "The eLtters of Queen Victoria." Not only of literary value, the book will give in the most interesting of all forms the history of one of the most interesting periods in English history.

The letters, the first of which was written in 1837, and the last within the year of the aged majesty's death, at the age of 81 years.

"Victoria, queen and empress, was not a mere figurehead upon her double throne," write a British critic.

She was a stateswoman of no mean fiber; well versed, as well as profoundly interested, in the political problems of her time; and numerous as are the monuments which have been raised to her memory throughout this vast empire, it is the words written by her own hand from the prompting, now of her clear head, and then of her warm heart, which will endear her memory to the English-speaking race, as both a queenly woman and a womanly queen.

She was great enough also to modify her opinions if, on consideration, she found that they were untenable, and, in the same frank manner, to confess that her judgment of the character and motives of some of the advisers who surrounded her had been faulty or erroneous. Courage, too, was one of her most noteworthy characteristics. She hated war and its dire results with true feminine fervor, but when it had been proved to her that war was inevitable, she put her own feelings aside; accepted, and faced, facts boldly, satisfied that the cause which called the nation to arms was righteous and just.

I find this view confirmed in her letter of rebuke to the king of Prussia, when he refused to join the alliance between France and England against Russia.

"Your majesty," wrote the queen, "asks me 'to examine the question in a spirit of love for peace, and even now to build a bridge for the imperial honor.' Ah, my dear sir and brother, all the inventive gifts, all the architecture of diplomacy and good will, have been uselessly used during these last nine months in this bridge-building! The projets de notes, de conventions, de protocoles, etc., etc., have proceeded by the dozen from the chancelleries of the several powers, and one might call the ink wasted upon them another Black sea. But everything has been shipwrecked against the self-will of your honorable brother-in-law. . . . . .

"Shakespeare's words:

'Beware
Of entrance to a quarrel; but, being in,
Bear it that the opposer may beware of thee,'

are deeply engraved on the hearts of all Englishmen. Sad that they are to find an application at this crisis in a nation with whom previously nothing prevailed but friendship and affection!"

The above is a proof that her majesty had the honor of the nation at heart, no matter how terrible the cost of upholding it would prove to be.

Love of Her Soldiers.

"The queen's anxiety for her soldiers is shown in her numerous letters to the prime minister and secretary of state for war during and after the close of the Crimean war," continues the same critic.

It is not, I imagine, disputed that, in the composition of her state papers and letters to cabinet ministers upon public affairs, she had the able assistance of the prince consort, but here and there we find brief, sarcastic remarks which must have been penned by her majesty herself. Here is one:

"The queen was struck also with the little work done at Enfield. It appears that, during the whole quarter, their new and expensive establishment has completed only three rifles;"

and in the same dispatch is the following brief but pithy comment:

"The absence of all plans for our defense is a great evil and hardly credible."

It is impossible to follow in detail the mass of correspondence upon a variety of subjects which, in the years before and after her marriage, passed between the queen and her minister, her uncle, the king of Belgians, and her trusted adviser, Baron Stockmar. Her majesty's dislike of Sir Robert Peel is a matter of history, and it was a trial to her to accept him as prime minister in succession to Lord Melbourne, who had been her trusted friend from her accession. Historical, also, is the bold stand made by the young queen in the matter of the dismissal of her ladies of the bed chamber. Sir Robert went so far as to decline to form a cabinet because her majesty would not yield to his project.

The unbounded esteem and affection which the queen felt for Melbourne, Peel's political rival, are also well known. In August, 1841, Lord Melbourne resigned, and the torigs, who had succeeded in reducing the grant to Prince Albert on his marriage, came into power. Her majesty was grieved to lose Lord Melbourne, and she expressed herself frankly upon the subject to the king of the Belgians as follows:

"You will easily have imagined," she wrote, "how dreadful the resignation of my government—and particularly of that truly inestimable and excellent man, Lord Melbourne—was for me, and you will have felt for me! What I suffered I cannot describe! To have to take people whom I should have no confidence in . . . was most painful and disagreeable; but I felt I must do it, and made up my mind to it—nobly advised and supported by Lord Melbourne, whose character seems to me more perfect and noble since I have gone through this."

VISCOUNT ESHER, G. C. V. O., K. C. B.

The Editors.

The editors of the queen's letters, Arthur Christopher Benson and Viscount Esher, are well known the world over, Benson better to the American readers than is Esher.

In the "Upton Letters" Benson is at present more popularly known, these first published anonymously. Other books by Benson include: "Alfred Tennyson," "Upton Letters," "Essays," "Life of Edward Fitzgerald," "Memoirs of Arthur Hamilton," "Peace and Other Poems," "Upton eLtters," "Essays," "Life of Edward White Benson," "Lord Vyet and Other Poems," "Lyrics," "Professor and other Poems."

Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson.

Speaking of an address by Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson before the Contemporary Club, of Philadelphia, The Public Ledger says:

"The assemblage, a brilliant one, included many of the well known literary and cultured folk of the city. Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson is a daughter of Richard Cobden. She became at an early age a hard student of state affairs. As she grew to young womanhood her knowledge increased and with this knowledge came a desire that women of England should be emancipated from political bondage and given the rights enjoyed by men.

"She is an attractive woman, of great culture and pleasing speaker. . . . Her story of her own attempts to get a hearing before the English parliament, her arrest and imprisonment, was dramatic and through her whole address she held her audience spellbound. Whatever the large audience thought of her views in general, all were thoroughly impressed with the sincerity of the speaker.

"Woman's rights she declared to be woman's duties, and a woman who took no interest in politics in England, she said, was looked down upon. For the final movement that brought emancipation in a very large sense to women in England, she gave the credit to our own William Lloyd Garrison, whose visit to that country gave the movement to much impetus.

"Speaking of her arrest and imprisonment, she said, 'Six of us got together and decided that we should be represented before that body (parliament), and agreed to stand shoulder to shoulder, no matter what might happen. We were arrested and imprisoned, but the recollection of all that is sweet to me because those moments when you are suffering for an ideal are the happiest of your life.'"

In the Right Place.

It is an interesting fact that Mrs. Decker has been made vice chairman of the national child labor committee, because women's clubs should hold the safest and most conservative middle ground between capital and labor on this point of child labor.

Demanding protection for the child, but refusing to do injustice to the manufacturer by means of whom both child and parent must live, the Civic Federation and the national child labor committee, while both seeking the best interests of all concerned in the matter of child labor, had differed considerably as to the facts in the case, their statistics falling widely apart. This national commission, made up of representatives of both organizations, will strive to get at the truth of the matter and in that endeavor club women, with Mrs. Decker at their head, are to play a considerable part.

Southern Cooking.

Editor Woman's Department: I inclose a recipe which I thought might prove useful about the period of Thanksgiving. A SUBSCRIBER.

One teaspoonful of powdered sugar, one dash of orange bitters, one jigger of Scotch whisky, one-half jigger of Italian vermouth. Stir in cracked ice until thoroughly blended and colored, then drink, then—

Well, then the pianola sounds as good as the symphony orchestra. The second one convinces you that trust companies and savings banks are solvent and you want to put your money back. If you take three it seems like summer, otherwise you'd buy your wife—or the affinity—a new fur coat. Then it is time to stop.

It moves the poet to the following:

In its glistening depth is the light of her eyes,
In its taste is her honey kiss.
There's a victor's crown for the man who tries
To build me another like this.

If you put another bright red cherry in the last one you will feel like a Belmont as you ride home.

THE ROAST TURKEY.

For a 14-pound turkey have it dry picked, clean and wash well, let it remain in a cool place twenty-four hours, then steam thirty minutes. Make a rich dressing and have ready one quart of oysters. Place a layer of dressing and one of oysters, continue until it is well filled, place in a self-baster, cover with butter and flour. Add one pint of water, one-fourth a cup of butter, brown nicely.

DRESSING FOR TURKEY.

Three pints of bread crumbs, half dozen of corn meal muffins, three eggs, half teaspoon of pulverized sage, half a teaspoon of thyme, one of pepper and salt, half cup of butter or drippings of the turkey. Put crumbs in a bowl, next crumble up the muffins, pour over enough hot milk to moisten so it will work well and free from lumps; add the beaten eggs, next the butter, last the dry ingredients. If onions are desired add two shredded very fine.

One teacup of the drippings in a saucepan when very hot, add one pint of sweet milk, stir one dessert spoonful of flour dissolved in a little cold milk, have ready in the tureen two hard boiled eggs and the liver and gizzard chopped very fine, pour over the gravy and place in a warm place to remain until ready for use.

MINCEMEAT.

Four pounds of apples chopped very fine, one pound of suet chopped to a dust, one pound of raisins seeded, one pound of clean currants, half pound of citron shredded, juice of three lemons and three oranges, two dessert spoons each of lemon and vanilla extract. Mix well and add one pint of good brandy.

ARTHUR CHRISTOPHER BENSON, M. A., F. R. H. S.

NO RECRUITS FOR ARMY.

Gen. Ainsworth Says Conscript System May Become Necessary.

Washington, November 25.—The difficulty of securing recruits for the army; the prevalence of desertion with the reasons therefor; and an unwelcome suggestion that the decadent European system of conscription or compulsory military service may become necessary to maintain the American army at its maximum strength are the features of the annual report of the Adjutant General Ainsworth to the secretary of war.

Reasons for the decrease in enlistments are not difficult to find, according to the report. These are: The low rate of pay as compared with that obtaining in civil life; dissatisfaction with the hard work of practice marches, drills and the fatigue duties necessary to keep a post in good condition; the abolition of the canteen and the failure of the recruits to appreciate the obligations of a contract and their iguorance of the character of the crime of desertion; frequent changes of company officers, due to a shortage of officers and the lack of experienced, capable well-paid and satisfied noncommissioned officers.

The actual strength of the entire military establishment on October 15 last, was 58,998 men, including 3,000 officers, but not including 3,400 men of the hospital corps so that the establishment was 19,671 men short of its authorized strength. The deficiency on the corresponding date of the preceding year 7,-684.

More Soldiers and Widows Added.

Macon, Ga., November 25.—(Special.) The pension lists of Bibb county for the coming year will contain twenty-five new successful applicants for funds from the state. This number has been passed upon by the pension office. There will be eight to ten coming off the lists through death. Twenty of the new applicants are old soldiers. The other five are widows. On an average Bibb loses about as many as are added each year to the list, but the statistics show an unusual gain in the death rate. Not many years will have elapsed before there will be very few applications for pensions.

Eight Persons Injured in Wreck.

Laurel, Miss., November 25.—Eight persons were injured when a Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City railroad train jumped the track near here today. The cars slid down an embankment. J. T. Varner, of Mobile, and C. F. Taylor, of Ellisville, Miss., two of the injured, are in a critical condition.

The NOVENT

The Petticoat That Gives You Graceful Hip-Lines. Its Jersey Top is Perfect Fitting.

The Novent is a mighty good Petticoat for the woman who wants her gowns to lie smooth and snug over her hips. It does away with that bulging and irregularity that the ordinary petticoat is almost sure to produce. It gives a slender, graceful effect--and that, you know, is eminently desirable for this season; for Fashion's emissaries have calmly but firmly announced that "women are to have no hips"; which, reduced to practice, means that they are to have just as slender and tapering lines as possible.

The NOVENT, then, is a boon. It has a deep top made of Jersey fabric with good "give" to it. It conforms to the figure, lying over the hips with perfect smoothness. It is drawn close about the waist with an elastic band. No buttons, no placket to sag and gape, no bulgy places--but just a smooth, even, perfectly fitting garment that looks well itself and helps your gowns to look well.

The ruffle is a deep, well made one of either sateen or silk, with an underdrop. Some have both ruffles of silk, some have the top one of silk and the under one of mercerized goods, and others have both of the mercerized.

LITTLE CHILD DIES OF BURNS

Katherine Petty Falls Into a Pan of Boiling Water.

Little Catherine Petty, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Petty, fell into a pan of boiling hot water and died Sunday night from burns received before rescued.

According to the statement of the mother, little Catherine was playing on the back porch of the residence, 319 East Fair street, and in some manner unknown to the mother, who was in the kitchen at the time of the accident, fell into a large pan of hot water which had been placed on the floor, and was fearfully scalded before she could be taken out by the mother, who was summoned by her screams.

The little girl died in great agony at 6:40 o'clock Sunday night. The funeral services occurred yesterday afternoon.

SHOPPERS BUSY ON PRETTY DAY

Continued Fair and Not So Cold, Is Weather Forecast.

It looked more like the week of Christmas, than that of Thanksgiving on Whitehall and other shopping streets of the city yesterday. The first sunshiny business day, following ten days of wetness and disagreeable weather, brought thousands into the market place.

For today the weather man promises continued fair and not so cold. The first part of the prediction is what will delight the heart of all of Atlanta, for it takes very little mean weather to go a long ways with the people of this city.

The stores report one of the best day's business of the fall season, and Atlanta spent another happy day.

There was not a cloud in the sky, and the winter weather was just warm enough to keep from chapping, and just cold enough to make winter-weight clothes feel comfortable.

13 PERSONS PERISH BY FIRE

Several Other Inmates of New York Tenement Injured.

FIRE DUE TO INCENDIARIES

Police Believe That Torch Was Applied From Motives of Revenge — Piles of Dead Found on the Upper Floors.

New York, November 25.—Thirteen persons lost their lives and several others were injured early today in a tenement house fire at One Hundred and Ninth street and Second avenue. All the dead were Italians. Seven of the thirteen were children. The bodies were found huddled together in rooms on the top floor of the four-story building, where the terror-stricken people had been driven b ythe flames, which rushed up from the lower floors. They had succumbed before they could reach windows which led to the fire escapes. Some had been enveloped in the flames and burned alive. Others, overcome by smoke, were spared the agonies of death in the flames.

Work of Incendiaries.

That the fire was the work of incendiaries, who sought revenge, is the opinion of the police and firemen who made the first hasty examination. Three weeks ago three Italians were caught in the act of attempting to rob a safe in the saloon of Guiseppe Cudano, on the ground floor. The safe contained over $2,000 which the saloon keeper's friends had withdrawn from the banks during the money panic. The would-be robbers were arrested and are now awaiting trial. The fire of today started in Cudano's saloon, and the police believe that it may have been the work of friends of the prisoners who took this means or squaring the account with the saloon keeper.

Cudano discovered the fire when he went down to open his place of business early this morning. As he opened the door he was met by a rush of flames, and without waiting a moment to investigate, dashed up the stairs to the tenements above, crying out for the occupants of the building to run for their lives. When he reached the rooms occupied b yhis own family he burst in the door and, seizing his young son in his arms, told Mrs. Cudano and other members of the family to follow. Cudano and the boy managed to find their way down the sairs to the street, but before the women could get through the flames had cut off all exit.

Piles of Dead Found.

Not a single person was seen to appear at any of the windows of the blazing building with the exception of those on the second floor, from which several persons reached the fire escapes and were rescued. After the flames had been partially checked, firemen fought their way through the smoke to the upper floors. There they came upon piles of dead where they had fallen victims to the rush of flames and smoke even before they had a chance to attempt to save themselves. In one of the heaps the firemen found a woman who had made one last desperate effort to save the life of her baby even when she knew that she herself was doomed to a horrible death. She had folded her arms tightly around the little one and then huddled down close to the floor, her own body protecting that of the child. The mother's body was badly burned. That of the child bore scarcely a mark, but it was dead from suffocation. On every side of the mother and child lay the bodies of other victims.

GEORGIA TEAMS BEHIND ENEMIES

Invaders Come Thanksgiving With More Games Stowed Away.

Both Tech and Georgia Will Make Strong Efforts to Get One of Them Back — Auburn Has One More Game Than Georgia.

1903—Clemson 73, Tech 0.
1904—Tech 11, Clemson 11.
1905—Tech 17, Clemson 10.
1906—Clemson 10, Tech 0.

The Auburn team goes to Macon Thursday, one game in the lead of the Red and Bleck eleven, after thirteen long years of strenuous pegging, the teams having switched in the standing, if such exists in football, continuously in the long period of play.

Auburn took the first game between the two teams in 1892. Then Georgia won; Auburn, then Georgia. The next game went to Auburn and Georgia played her to a tie in the following year, but yielded the palm by the lopsided count of 44 to 0 in the next season. Georgia braced up and got two in a row and Auburn came back at her in the next two years.

The Red and Black gained the decision last season that showed her within one game of her strong rival, Auburn having won six to Georgia's five.

Auburn has a good team, but it seems to have been retrograding rather than progressing since the opening of the season. And as for Georgia, her lineup has changed so much this season that it is hard to get at her real strength, but it looks as if she should make a creditable showing, as it was a bona fide team that cut loose the good performance against the Sewanee Tigers.

Auburn won from Tech and Tech defeated Georgia, but that dope shouldn't figure to any extent. It is true that Georgia has been handicapped by being out of real football for so long and losing the coach that had gotten the team together. The last is quite a hefty drawback.

Tech Way Behind.

Tech is way behind in her little matter with Clemson, having taken only one game and made one tie out of five played, and the Clemson bunch as a whole appears to be in much better shape than the local one at the present sitting.

But it's about time for the worm to turn and the Yellow Jackets may uncork one of these superhuman efforts and win out. If such a hoodoo had not tacked itself onto the Atlanta eleven this season it would have had one of these fine and daisy chances to win, for with everything working as it should she showed stronger and the Clemsonians weaker than last season when the Williams crowd landed its 10 to 0 victory. Clemson has a new coach this year and new men in some of the positions, and the bunch will be considerably changed over last year.

The Atlanta following almost had a look at Tech's Thanksgiving opponents in the game with Georgia here that was not. Had that occurred some estimate of the strength of the South Carolinans might have been obtained, but as it is, it's pretty hard to figure out just how the two teams stand, and another outstanding question is the Yellow and White line-up for Thursday.

A look at the scores of the past three years readily reveals the fact that Tech steadily improved in her work against her Thanksgiving enemy after the 1903 fiasco, and then blew up last year. And the Jackets are mighty anxious to get some of this back.

A Battle of Interest.

The game with Clemson has steadily grown in interest since it began to be an annual occurrence and future years promise to make it even more so.

Since the terrific blow-up in the midst of the 1907 season happened, there is not the slightest chance that Tech will take to playing Georgia on Thanksgiving day. In fact, it's a safe tip that the two Georgia colleges will not come together again in either football or baseball for several seasons to come, and anyway, it is understood that the athletic authorities favored letting the dates remain as they were, not at all entering into the idea of a change.

And so, if nothing untoward occurs, the Tech-Clemson and Georgia-Auburn contests will be with us on the big feed day for some time yet to be.

And if the four teams concerned are satisfied with the arrangement, every one else should be.

ROUGH TACTICS TAUGHT BY FOOTBALL COACHES

A New York sporting writer charges that coaches teach football players to use rough tactics on opponents, and neither coach nor players ever dwell at length on the question, except to avoid being caught.

Here is some of his dope on the great pastime:

"Football is the roughest of all sports wherein a number of men are engaged, and it is unquestionably the most attractive of all American pastimes.

"The banner crowds of the year see football. They love it because it is rough; because it requires strength, gameness and skill, especially gameness.

"Every effort to eliminate roughness from football has failed, and it always will fail, because that is the secret of its popularity.

"Every college boy who goes on the gridiron expects to be roughed, and, moreover, he is taught to be rough himself.

"The slogan of the coaches is 'Be rough as long as you are not observed.'"

Then a few methods in use on the gridiron are given:

"Striking player blow on chest by bringing both elbows together with great force.

"Striking a tackler in face with heel of hand, instead of using 'straight arm,' while running with the ball.

"Striking an opposing linesman under the chin by suddenly lifting the back of the head while crouching before ball is snapped.

"Falling purposely so as to trip interfering runners ahead of man with the ball.

"'Holding' by use of legs while apparently trying to get out of a runner's way."

It might as well be said in defense of the game in this part of the country that if any such practices are in vogue, they pretty well escape the eye of the officials and the spectators. It is very seldom that any one notices other than clean play on the part of the athletes, and if anything different is pulled off, the players succeed very well in avoiding an expose of their actions.

THEATERS.

At the Grand.

"A Doll's House" is a very interesting piece of literature. The peculiar theories of the people who move through its scenes and speak its lines, invite discussion. Henrik Ibsen has constructed an engaging plot and injected into it some of his positive views on heredity. It would read well.

The small audience which gathered last night at the Grand to see Miss Florence Davis and Elliott Dexter render the leading parts in this much discussed play were mildly interested, but never enthusiastic. The youth and charm and buoyant freshness of Miss Davis is engaging. An audience could not be possible to be bored with her on the stage. But greater maturity mentally and physically, would be indispensable in the actress who could make convincing the unique heroine of Ibsen's production. With more whole-souled, joyous abandon in the lighter scenes and a deeper meaning read into the final passages by the principals a stronger grip would have been secured upon the senses and understanding of the audience.

The make-up of Phillip Maitland as Dr. Rank was startling. A perfectly healthy specimen, according to his ruddy hands and pink neck, he was a hopeless victim of a horrible disease by his own statement.

R. B. Mitchell as Krogstad, was one of the best members of the troup. Ibsen does not believe in wasting scenery. The whole action takes place in one room and three days.

There will be a performance this afternoon, and again tonight.

At the Bijou.

Last night, at the Bijou, was presented George Ade's great comedy drama, "The County Chairman." The theater was crowded with an audience which tested the capacity of the theater. It was also a very appreciative crowd, and spontaneous laughter and hearty applause were thickly interspersed throughout the four splendid acts.

The central character about which the play revolves is the Honorable Jim Hackler, the county chairman, which part was most admirably filled by William T. Chatterton. Mr. Chatterton played the part so naturally that he seemed to be the personification of the character he essayed. With bluff heartiness, with subtle humor, with boldness, and with a smiling face he met, in the character of the trained politician, every obstacle with that spirit which he endeavored to instill into his candidate in the following words: "Claim everything in sight until the election returns are counted out, and if they go against you yell fraud."

Jim Hackler's candidate was Tilford Wheeler, which part was splendidly played by Harry Hayden. Elias Rigsby, the opposition candidate, was well portrayed by Wilbur Atkinson, and the character was finely interpreted by him.

Clint G. Ford, in the part of the negro voter, Sassafras Livingston, kept the audience laughing upon his every appearance. Ed Gorman, as Jefferson Briscoe, the storebox orator, was good, as was C. A. Williams in the character of the old settler, Uncle Eck Milbury. Lawrence Windom acted the part of the drummer in splendid fashion.

May Bretone as Lucy Rigby, Nan D. Kress as Mrs. Elias Rigby, Harriet Neville as Mrs. Jefferson Briscoe, and Martha Hansford as the scheming milliner, all gave delightful interpretation of the characters they represented. The other characters of the play were splendidly interpreted.

The play will be at the Bijou all of the week, with matinees today, Thanksgiving and Saturday.

At the Orpheum.

A breezy bill is offered at the Orpheum theater this week—variety playing no minor role in last evening's entertainment. It being customary to leave the better things till last, it must be remarked here that the noise that prevailed in the gallery last night during one of the best sketches of the evening was very annoying, and is a thing that should be stopped at any expense.

Following No. 1, the overture of the orchestra, came The Kramers, billed as "Two Real Comedians." They're good, and the more petite of the two proved one of the best clown dancers the Orpheum has afforded this season. Following came Lee Tung Loo, said to be the only Chinese baritone. Lee has a good act, to which a good voice is a necessity, and he also has the voice. In short, there'll be a scarcity in the laundry ticket market this week if the local celestials get the word passed among them.

Then came the Pendleton's, a musical act. It's something like all musical acts. 'Tisn't at all boresome and was thoroughly enjoyed by those of a more musical turn of mind. As No. 5 came the Grotesque Randolphs, and they're up to the standard of the rest of the bill, and then some.

After the intermission appeared Charles R. Swoet, declared by many to have the best act on the entire bill. Mr. Sweet has a snappy act, and is just chuck full of wit, which he turns loose in bunches. It was during the course of this act that the gallery got off key. Miss Aurle Dagwell, the "Girl Who Sings the Old Songs," was quite entertaining, and received several encores.

The final act before the moving pictures was one of the best. It was pulled off by the Rigoletto Brothers, who are equal to any acrobats that have been down at the Orpheum recentlly. The entire eight bills, plus the moving pictures, are good—really good.

Every night and the usual matinees will prevail during the remainder of the week.

J. C. HARRIS.

"The Lightning Conductor."

Mr. Oscar Figman, who is to appear at the Grand Wednesday and Thanksgiving, will present "The Lightning Conductor," a comedy adapted by Harry B. Smith, from the novel of the same name by C. N. and A. M. Williamson. "The Lightning Conductor" is not a lightning rod agent of the happy days before the war, as might be supposed, nor an idealized Marconi. Nothing so prosaic. He is a gentleman chauffeur touring France in a motor car. He runs across Miss Molly Randolph, an American heiress, who is doing likewise, and through a series of adventures, more or less laughable, they come to travel in the same car, he as a salaried chauffeur under the unromantic name of James Brown, and she as his employer.

"Rip Van Winkle."

"Rip Van Winkle," with Thomas Jefferson in the title role, will be the offering at the Grand Friday and Saturday. There is no actor or play before the American public today that more thoroughly delights the young folks and the old, too, for that matter, than Thomas Jefferson and "Rip Van Winkle."

HARD PRACTICE HAD BY JACKETS

Good Weather Allowed Tech to Go at It in Good Fashion.

With a large bunch of students on the sidelines to cheer the athletes on, the Yellow Jacket squad put in the hardest practice yesterday afternoon since the Vanderbilt disaster, the 'varsity engaging in a warm scrimmage with the scrubs, in which a goodly number of plays were reeled off.

At times the 'varsity played brilliant football and again it did not. ragged work allowing the scrubs to gain distances that weren't bad, pretty forward passes turning up some of them. The whole crew went at it with a vim and marked improvement in the form showed during the week of rain and suspension just passed. Had the field been a little less groggy, the going would have been much better, no doubt.

A few more of the regulars crawled back into action, Davis, Snyder, Buchanan, Smith, and Sims being among them. This was Sims' first appearance since his illness, and about all he could do was to chase around the lot with those of the cripples who were not able to perform in the scrimmages.

Davis, who will work at full on Thursday in the Clemson game, took a shot at his new position yesterday. Luck's hand is too bad for him to get in the whole game, but it is probable that he will be used during a part of it at some job.

Robert is being worked at half and end and will either play in Captain Sweet's place or be on the extremity of the line opposite to Hill. Jones being in no shape to work.

Emerson will be the quarterback, as both Hightower and Buchanan are out. The gap left in the line by Davis' switch to full will be filled by "Swede" Johnson, and the place is not new to him. Johnson played a good tackle in the Georgia game.

In case Robert is worked at half, Inman Bell will probably play end, and the Tech line-up for the battle with the South Carolinans will be somewhat like this: Snyder, center; Henderson and Smith, guards; Johnson and Brown, tackles; Bell, or Robert, and Hill, ends; Emerson, quarterback; Fitzsimmons and Robert, halves, and Davis, full. Adamson may work in the backfield if Robert is put in the line.

Anyway you take it, it is not a bad looking composition. While Tech has been most unlucky this season, there is no getting around the fact that she has been fortunate in one particular, and that is having an abundance of good material on hand and having little trouble in filling places if they all don't get injured at once.

The team will have its practice at the flats this afternoon, and will go to Ponce de Leon for the workout on Wednesday, the day before the game.

GRIFFITH IS STRONGER WITH HIS NEW PLAYERS

Joe Vila, the New York correspondent of The Sporting News, thinks that Clarke Griffith has strengthened his team tremendously by the acquisition of Glade, Niles and Hemphill. Vila sizes up the trade thus:

"The Yankees next year will have a great following, both in New York city and all over the state of New York. In make-up they so far outclass the Giants that comparison is ridiculous. It is the chance of a lifetime for Clarke to land a pennant for the big town next year, and as Griff has made many changes in his team to his own satisfection, I see no reason why the Yankees cannot begin the 1908 campaign with a flourish of bats and trumpets.

"If the unprejudiced can show me a faster infield quartet anywhere on earth than Chase, Niles, Elberfield and Conroy, I'll take off my hat to them. These four men are simply lightning, they can all hit, run the bases and field far better than any similar quartet in baseball, while as clever, hustling 'inside men' they cannot be excelled.

"Griffith knew what he was about when he made the deal for Niles, Hemphill and Glade, sure enough, and he deserves much credit for pulling it off. With Moriarty to fall back upon as a utility man, the Yankees are particularly well fortified.

"Then look at the outfield! Jake Stahl, Hemphill and Billy Keeler! I guess they can't hit, run or field at all! Oh, no! Not a bit! Won't some of the enemy's pitchers look like pancakes when these Yankee sluggers get busy next year with their ball-flatteners?

"Then when you think of the catchers, Blair, Thomas and Kleinow, unless the last-named figured in a trade of some sort later on, you cannot see where any other team in the American League has it on us in the back-stopping line.

"And after that, when you figure on the pitching department, there is no room for doubt that it will not be a hummer when Griff's recruits—Glade, Lake, Neuer, Doyle and Hughes—proceed to pitch well enough to jack up the veterans, Orth, Chesbro, Hogg and Newton. There is much interest is the Yankees nowadays, since the big deal with the St. Louis Browns was pulled off, that the fans are talking about the team all the time.

BLOOD POISON

HUMILIATING-VILE-DESTRUCTIVE

The first symptom of Contagious Blood Poison is usually a little sore or ulcer, which is quickly followed by a red rash on the skin, swollen glands in the groin, falling hair, ulcerated mouth and throat, and often copper colored splotches on different parts of the body. As the blood becomes more fully contaminated with the poison, pustular eruptions and sores break out on the flesh, and in extreme cases the nerves and bones are attacked and the finger nails drop off. Then the sufferers find themselves diseased from head to foot with this humiliating, vile and destructive poison. No other disease is so highly contagious; many an innocent person has been inoculated by handling the clothing or using the toilet articles of an infected person. There is but one certain, reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison, and that is S. S. S. It attacks the disease in the right way by going down into the circulation, and neutralizing and forcing out every particle of the poison. It makes the blood pure and rich, tones up the system, and completely and permanently cures this disease. S. S. S. has cured thousands of cases of Contagious Blood Poison. If you are suffering with this debasing and destructive disease begin the use of S. S. S. and get the poison out of your blood before it permanently wrecks your health. We have a home treatment book on the disease which we will send free to all who wish it, and in addition our physicians will give without charge any medical advice needed. COTTON HIGHER FOR NOVEMBER

But Three to Five Points Lower on Other Months.

Market Opened Steady at an Advance, but Afterwards Eased Off Under Realizing or Liquidation and Closed Steady as Above.

New York, November 25.—The cotton market was moderately active today, with fluctuations irregular and the close steady, 8 points higher for November, but generally 3 to 5 points net lower on other options. Sales estimated at 275,000 bales.

The market opened steady 5 to 9 points higher, and during the early session sold up to a net advance of 11 to 14 points on covering of shorts and bull support, which, was probably inspired by the higher Liverpool cables, reports that Lancashire labor troubles had been settled and expectations of a bullish private crop estimate at midday. January sold at 10.50 on the advance, but no stop orders were caught at this figure as expected, and later the market eased off under realizing or liquidation by early buyers who may also have been disappointed by the announcement that the private estimate looked for at midday would not be issued until next Friday. Reports that many New England mills would close down from Wednesday for the balance of the week, and would go on short time next week, probably promoted selling during the afternoon, when the market ruled rather easy and unsettled, with the close only a point or two up from the lowest. A private crop estimate issued early placed the yield at 12,000,000 bales. Private wires reported firmness on the part of interior holders, and bulls claimed that Carolina mills were in the market for raw cotton.

Receipts at the ports today, 54,293, against 68,384 last week and 63,099 last year. For the week 350,000, against 351,533 last week, and 402,138 last year.

New Orleans Cotton.

New Orleans, November 25.—Cotton, spots were firm at an advance of 1-16c on all grades. Middling 10 15-16. Sales 2,000 bales on spot and 1,450 to arrive. Quotations revised: Lod ordinary 6 13-16, nominal; ordinary 7⅝, nominal; good ordinary 9 1-16, nominal; low middling 10 1-16; middling 10 15-16; good middling 11 3-16; middling fair 11 11-16; fair 12 5-16, nominal. Futures opened steady 3 to 7 points above the close Saturday as a result of favorable advices from Liverpool. The requisite support to hold the advance was not forthcoming, however, and after the call there was a recession in values. Reports of heavy selling also figured as a bearish factor. When a scarcity of offerings in the spot market brought about an advance on all spot grades it served to regain for the future market some of its early losses, although the close found lower levels than the close Saturday. The close was steady, with the active months unchanged to 1 point below the close Saturday.

Dry Goods.

New York, November 25.—The cotton goods market developed a slight increase in inquiry for goodh at lower prices today. Raw silk continues to sag in price. Foreign dress goods for fall are to be opened shortly, but the domestic lines will not be shown by most houses until next year. Cotton yarns are easier and weak.

Liverpool Cotton.

Liverpool, November 25—Close: Cotton, spot in fair demand; prices 10 points higher; American middling fair 6.59; good middling 6.25; middling 6.03; low middling 5.71; good ordinary 5.27; ordinary 4.67. The sales of day were 8,000 bales, of which 500 were for speculation and export and included 7,600 American. Receipts 23,000 bales, including 13,500 American. Futures opened firm and closed steady.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York, November 25.—From the opening the feature has been the bearish attitude taken by the large local operators based on the belief that an advance of 12 points in Liverpool would not be maintained tomorrow and, therefore, regardless of any factor, a reduction was in order. Under this impression the market slowly declined, closing steady, about the lowest, 3 points under Saturday's close and the entire trade looking for a decline in Liverpool. Some arbitrage brokers sold here and bought in Liverpool, while Wall street at times was a large buyer. But the general view is as taken above. A little more inquiry from New England spinners was in evidence and the interior movement was light, probably largely due to the bad weather of last week. The temper of the trade continues bearish.

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS TUESDAY.

New Orleans 18,000 to 20,500, against 17,846 last year.

Houston 14,000 to 15,000, against 34,148.

Carpenter, Baggot & Co.

New York, November 25.—The local market was favorably influenced by the better sables and opened at an advance of 5 to 9 points, increasing the gain soon after the call, January selling up to 10.50 and March and May 10.62 and 10.70, respectively. Most of the buying on the advance was by previous bears, who were selling the market around 10c not long since, while the selling came mostly from realizing by the bulls.

Weakness in the stock market was a somewhat depressing factor, still the majority of the trade paid less attention to weakness in this quarter than was their custom not long since, as continued liquidation is looked for in stocks some time to come. Cotton is in a strong position statistically, which is reflected by the price and firmness of the spot article in the south. Estimates of the yield continue to be reduced. Those who were rmapant bears and believers in 13,500,000 bales are now predicting 11,750,000 to 12,500,000, while a large majority of the trade rampant bears and believers in 13,500,000 bales. We still believe this crop is considerably under 11,000,000 bales and advise our friends to purchase cotton on all weak periods. Those selling the far months at such discounts will have to pay dearly for their folly before the season is out.

Swift & Co.'s sales of fresh beef in Atlanta for the week ending Saturday, November 23, averaged 6.78 cents per pound.

Cotton Seed Oil.

New York, November 25.—Cotton seed oil was easier under large receipts and poor demand. Prime crude 24c; prime summer yellow 33½; off summer yellow 31@33½; good off summer yellow 33@33½; prime white 40; prime winter yellow 40. Futures closed steady:

STOCKS DID NOT FOLLOW ADVANCE

Waiting for Restoration of Banking Operations.

Renewal of Some Liquidation in Special Stocks—Railroad List Affected—Premium on Currency Easier, and Gold Premium Lower.

New York, November 25.—The stock market did not show any disposition at any time today to follow up the advance of Saturday. The movement seemed to be considered ill-advised, on second thought, on the ground that a resumption of an active advance in stocks would be premature before the banking operations of the country have been restored to normal. An early resumption of cash payments by the banks all over the country is now looked for with growing confidence, but the conditions which this resumption may disclose are awaited before seeking to enter on speculative commitments. There was a renewal also of some of the urgent liquidation in special stocks which was an unsettling factor in the whole market last week. The selling out of loans was the accepted explanation for weakness, which was especially pronounced in Missouri Pacific. It was thought that the weakness of this stock might owe something, also, to the campaign in personal relationships involved in the working out of contests for control of related railroad properties. Dividend possibilities also came inevitably into discussion by reason of the decline in that stock. The whole list of railroad stocks was more or less affected by this consideration which was given fresh force by the contents of the regular weekly reports from railroad traffic officials. These were quite uniform in the admission that arrears of railroad traffic were worked off or were being rapidly cleared up and that idle freight cars were accumulating. Published estimates of the extent to which working forces had been cut down in industrial enterprises made a formidable showing and, coupled with the heavy outward tide of returning foreigners pointing to the same conclusion, had a rather depressing effect on sentiment.

On the other side of the account was a strong advance in copper both in London and New York. Attention was attracted also by reports of the large numbers of revocations of previous cancellations of orders in various lines of wholesale trade. This was regarded as significant of the extent to which the first force of the reaction might be considered as overrunning itself, with the promise of subsequent rebound. There was a further distinct easing of the premium on currency today and this was the most important development of the day. Saturday's large gold arrivals were added to by subsequent arrivals. All of the day's arrivals of gold in the London market were taken for New York account, but with so little disturbance in the market that the gold was allowed to go at a sharp recession in the prices. The accretion of gold to the Bank of England results from other sources went on and that institution released $4,000,000 of gold to the open market that had been "ear-marked" or held apart for the account of the India council. International exchange houses in New York reported that additional supplies of gold were offered to their agents in France today, but that the decline in the premium on the currency here wiped out the margin of profit on closing the transaction. These are all highly significant occurrences earmarking unmistakably the loosening of the tension of the currency famine. The call money market also was appreciably easier today. Funds are still lacking, however, in the time loan market and the commercial paper market also is practically suspended. Careful compilations of the gold movement indicated a rapid approach to the $100,000,000 mark in the aggregate of the engagements. Under these circumstances the discussion of the possibilities of the treasury relief plan fell largely into abeyance as having served much of its intended purpose so far and it had helped in the restoration of confidence while the course of events had detracted from the importance of the question of its final working out. The stock market remained unaffected by the manifest improvement in the banking position and the condition of the circulation and prices declined without much interruption from start to finish.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $2,946,000.

Red Hot Work.

(From The London Standard.)

The chapters of Josiah Flyn't autobiography which are appearing in Success have an added interest since the death of that rather remarkable young man. In the current number he gives an account of his experiences as a coalpasser on a transatlantic steamer.

"My watches," he says, "were four hours long. They began at 8 o'clock in the morning and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon; the rest of the time was mine, excepting when it was my turn to carry water and help clean up the mess room.

"The first descent into the fire room of an ocean liner is unforgettable. Although hell as a domicile has long since been given up by me as a mere theological contrivance useful to keep people guessing, going down that series of ladders into the bowels of the old Elbe the heat seemed to jump ten degrees a ladder and made me think that I might have been mistaken.

"At last the final ladder was reached and we were at the bottom—the bottom of everything, was the though in more minds than one that afternoon. The head fireman of our watch immediately called my attention to a poker, easily an inch and a half thick and twenty to, thirty feet long.

"'Yours!' he screamed, 'Yours!' and he threw open one of the ash doors of a furnace, pantomiming what I was to do with the poker.

"I dove for it madly, just barely raised it from the floor and got it started into the ashes—and then dropped none too neatly on top of it.

"'Hurry up, you sow pig,' the fireman yelled, and I struggled again with the terrible poker, finally managing to rake

GEORGIA MARBLE WANTED FOR FEDERAL BUILDING

Citizens Urge Superiority of Georgia Marble for New Post Office as Best, Safest and Most Beautiful of All Building Stones.

Many of the cities in the south and other sections of the country have federal buildings of Georgia marble construction, and there has lately been a great wave of sentiment in this direction on the part of the people of Atlanta and the state. Many of these argue that as long as the government was able to erect these federal buildings, it can well afford to do the same for Atlanta, the recognized commercial and railroad center of the south. These same interested citizens and officials insist that inasmuch as Georgia marble is now conceded by the greatest experts and those in a position to know as the best of all building stones, and that it is being used in the erection of the finest state and government buildings throughout this country and Canada, to build Atlanta's new postoffice of any other material is a direct slight on one of the greatest of the natural resources of the great Empire State of the South. Now that Georgia marble—great deposits of which lie at Atlanta's very doors—has won an international reputation, the new postoffice, if erected of this material, would be conclusive proof that the Gate City appreciates Georgia's superiority in this direction, and the new building would stand a practical monument that all the thousands of visitors who come here might see and know for themselves.

Best Building Stone.

That Georgia marble is the best building stone known is proved both by the tests of government experts and the experience of leading architects of the country. In this connection, George B. Mundie, of Chicago, one of the leading architects of America today, says: "Georgia marble is the best weathering stone I know." And there are very many who not only have made the same statement, but in all important buildings insist that Georgia marble be used in the contracts. This has also been true of many government contracts.

Marble Best of Building Stones.

All building stones are valuable according to whether or not they absorb water or moisture. It is the absorption of just this moisture or wet that leads to disintegration, and, of course, the crumbling of the stone means an end to its durability in proportion to the crumbling. In other words, the non-absorbant qualities of all building stones are the life of these stones, and it is because many of the magnificent buildings antedating the Christian era were erected from grades of non-absorbent marble that portions withstood the ravages of thousands of winters and summers of cold, heat and rains.

Perhaps the most distinctive features of Georgia marble, and even more important than its great crushing strength and superior beauty, is the remarkable small percentage of absorption. While marbles generally are conceded to be lowest in percentages of absorption of building stones, Georgia marble has a tremendous advantage over other marbles in this most important particular. Because of its hard crystal formation it more nearly approaches the building marble of ancient times and the days of King Solomon's temple than any other.

Georgia marble absorbs but six-one hundredths of one per cent. For this same reason it is by far the most durable of all marbles. As for other building stones, they simply are not in a class with marble. Granite, for instance, absorbs from three-tenths of one per cent to three per cent, and limestone from three-tenths of one per cent to six per cent, showing that the very best granite absorbs three times as much moisture as Georgia marble. Consequently, the life of marble buildings, and most of all Georgia marble buildings, is much longer than those of any other construction.

Georgia Marble Don't Discolor.

This absorption is also the cause of discoloration of marble or any other stone. Possibly the advantages of Georgia marble were best illustrated in the erection of the Jacksonville federal building, so far as its proof against discoloration is concerned. A portion of the Jacksonville building, of which that city and every southern visitor is justly proud, stood uncompleted for some ten or twelve years. The government then decided to finish the edifice, and as Georgia marble had been used at the start, this same material was used in the completion.

Although the first or lower portion of the building had been exposed to the heat, cold and wet of many seasons, there was no discoloration of the stone and when the new Georgia marble was added to the old, it was hardly possible to tell where the old marble left off and the new began. When the dust and dirt were brushed from the old stone with a hard brush, it was quite impossible to tell the old weather-exposed Georgia marble from the new just from the quarries. This freedom from discoloration on large buildings of architectural beauty means much and makes the edifice one which may be pointed to with pardonable pride rather than with apologies for its dirty and unattractive appearance.

Strength of Georgia Marble.

Georgia marble possesses strength that is simply marvelous. Pieces measuring four feet long and two feet wide can be reduced to one-fourth inch in thickness and show almost the strength of window glass and even more beatiful when used in a variety of colors for transoms, memorial windows, etc. Some of the tests for crushing strength seem almost beyond belief, but there are authentic records for substantiation. Six three-inch cubes of Georgia marble were tested upon a United States standard Riehle testing machine of 100,000 pounds capacity. The lowest test was 76,200 pounds or 8,330 pounds per square inch, while two specimens stood 112,000 and 109,300 pounds, respectively, without crushing, which was stated to be a much greater load than the machine should be allowed to carry. More than this, those specimens which were crushed showed a remarkably uniform composition without seams or lines of cleavage.

While the durability and strength of any building stone is recognized as absolutely essential in these days of great structures, fine test of all building material is recognized as being of primary importance.

And just as Georgia marble has proved its superiority in these other respects, in the same way it is quite in a class by itself so far as its ability to withstand the ravages of fierce flames is concerned. This was very practically demonstrated in the great Baltimore fire when the International Trust building, erected of Georgia marble, in the very heart of the burned district, practically escaped injury from the terrible conflagration that with this exception carried all else to destruction. The damage resulting from the fire was the cracking of a couple pillars in front of the building. This was caused by the water being thrown on them when they were terribly hot from the fierce flames. On all sides of this Georgia marble building, which stood alone at the end of the conflagration, were the ruins of those built of granite, brick, limestone and other materials.

Georgia Marble in Jacksonville Fire.

During the great fire at Jacksonville, Fla., the walls of the custom house and postoffice, constructed of Georgia marble, were subjected to great heat, and one wall, afterwards taken down when the building was enlarged, seemed from external appearance so badly damaged that little or none of the marble would be usable in the new wall.

All contractors figuring the extension work, save one, took this view. One contractor who had had experience with Georgia marble under similar conditions figured that he could use most or all of it, and got the contract. When he took the wall down he washed the marble with a brush and cold water and found that it was uninjured, not even having to recut the marble, which was all passed upon and accepted by the government inspector.

The New York Weekly Underwriter, an insurance paper, began, "In the interest of the fire insurance business and that also of property owners and builders, a series of important tests of building stones." To this end the services of the eminent geologist, Hiram A. Cutting, Ph. D., were secured. All of the tests were made by parties in no way interested in or partial to the marble business.

Marble Proof Against Fire.

Dr. Cutting in his report of these experiments referred to practically all building stones. Referring to granite, he reported that of twenty-two varieties of granite from all parts of the United States and Canada, some were injured at a heat of 600 degrees and all at 800. Continuing, he stated, "As to granites, the table published in The Weekly Underwriter, April 24, shows conclusively that a heat sufficient to melt lead is sufficient to injure granite walls beyond the capability of repair, otherwise than by taking down, and it is almost, if not quite, impossible to burn out a granite building of small size even without damaging the walls. In fine, the damage, in my opinion, is equal to that of a wooden building under similar circumstances. All insurance upon granite buildings should therefore be rated to cover a total loss, if the walls are heated to 800 degrees; and as a rule they would be much damaged at 500 degrees."

Referring to granite and the fact that it was unsafe for great buildings in large cities, a New York newspaper recently stated: "The coroner's jury in the case of the two firemen killed by the collapse of the roof in a recent fire, have found that granite is an unsafe building material, and that granite pillars crumble away in a hot fire."

Going back a few years, the granite buildings of Boston melted in the great fire of 1872 and it was the marble front of Macular, Williams & Parker that stopped the fire on Washington street.

Referring to sandstones or freestones (including brownstones), Dr. Cutting reported that of twenty-three varieties some were injured at 800 degrees, all but two at 900 degrees and all without exception at 1,000 degrees. Of seven varieties of limestones, all but one were injured at 900 degrees and that one at 1,000 degrees.

Marble Withstands Severest Test.

Reporting on marble, Dr. Cutting states that of seven varieties, including all those commonly used for building purposes, all were uninjured at 800 degrees, all but one uninjured at 900 degrees and three remained uninjured at 1,000 degrees. Of these three, Dr. Cutting stated that they were "each uninjured until the heat is sufficient to change them into quicklime, which heat must exceed 1,200 degrees, and be continued for some time."

Georgia marble, because of its crystal formation, has withstood far greater resistance to the effect of heat than any building stone known.

That Georgia marble would be the safest material for Atlanta's new federal building is proved by the reports of experts. Dr. Cutting, in summing up his tests for The New York Underwriter, stated that "taken as a whole, the heart-resisting capacity of building stones stands as follows: First, marble; second, limestone; third, sandstone or freestone; fourth, granite; fifth, slate; sixth, conglomerates."

Georgia Marble's Unequaled Beauty.

As to the superiority of Georgia marble from the viewpoint of beauty, this is too generally conceded to need comment. Each and every building is itself proof positive that no other stone can approach it in point of appearance. More than this, because of the crystal formation, this beauty is permanent and will not suffer through discoloring or disintegration. If further evidence were needed it is only necessary to visit the quarries near Tate, Pickens county, Georgia, where the outcropping of the marble, that has been exposed to the action of the elements for unknown centuries, shows not the least sign of disintegration or discoloration. In the same way proofs are to be found on every side of cemeteries where Georgia marble is conspicuous because of the preservation of its pristine beauty, such as makes it the greatest of all stones for monumental purposes as well.

These are facts regarding Georgia marble and they practically support the wishes of all Atlantans and Georgians who do not want to have the new federal building erected of some foreign material, with the recognized best of all building material lying almost at her doors.

It does not lie within the power of one man or any set of men, however conceited he or they may be concerning the value of their own product, to defeat Georgia marble in its onward progress, and from finally taking its proper place as one of the world's most valuable building materials.

Facts will stand when biased opinions will have been forgotten.
